

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Preface.

GREAT credit is due to the New England Society for its efforts to perpetuate and keep alive the memory of our New England ancestors; but it is a duty equally incumbent on those of the present generation to preserve in permanent form for the use of posterity the genealogical records and personal achievements of our ancestors, and to show what part each generation bore in the construction and defense of our Colonies and later of our American Republic.

The design of the present work is to afford all who are so disposed to preserve in permanent form their line of ancestry as well as the personal achievements of their ancestors. As a foundation of the work an outline history of the Plymouth Colony is given together with four generations of the Bradford and Allied Families. Whether of Mayflower descent or not, every descendant of a New England family will be entitled to representation in the work, and no pains will be spared to make the record of each complete. Ample space will be allowed those who are willing to bear their pro rata of the expense. Illustrations of old homesteads, family portraits and relics will form an important feature of this work. Each family record with all the preceding matter will be published as fast as received, and parties may procure at a moderate price as many copies as they desire.

FORMATION OF THE PILGRIM COLONY.

The movement which led to the formation of the Pilgrim Church began in the Manor House at Scrooby, about 1605-6, under the ministrations of Richard Clyfton and John Robinson, and in the winter of 1607-8 an unsuccessful attempt was made by the members to reach Holland from Boston, in Lincolnshire. During the spring of 1608, they succeeded in making their escape and reached Amsterdam in safety. Among the names of those mentioned as being associated with William Bradford at this time or soon after were Elder William Brewster, William White, Isaac Allerton, Samuel Fuller, John Carver, Miles Standish, Stephen Tracy and a few others. Davis in his "Ancient Landmarks of Plymouth" says: "It is fair to presume that the Pilgrim community in Leyden was made up of members representing all the different classes of English life, outside of the circles of noble families, bound together by a common religious faith regardless of those differences in education and culture and social standing, which were insignificant indeed in comparison with their real bond of union. It was doubtless this disregard of social distinctions, forced on them by the necessities of their situation, which planted in their hearts that democratic seed, which at a later day germinated and grew in the soil of New England. It was the life of labor, too, led by them in Holland, which hardened their hands for the duties and hardships of a life in the wilderness, and which developed in their natures those capacities for practical, economical and thrifty work, without which their attempt at colonization would have been a failure."

DEPARTURE FOR AMERICA.

By the 11th of June everything was in readiness. Those of the Leyden company who were going to New England had sold their estates, putting their money into the common stock; the agents of the company in England had hired the Speedwell of sixty tons, and sent her to Delfthaven, to convey the colonists to Southampton, and the Mayflower of one hundred and eighty tons, had been engaged to meet them at that place, and join her consort for the voyage. "On the 31st of July" says Bradford "they left the goodly and pleasant citie which had been their resting place near 12 years; but they knew they were pilgrimes, and looked not much on those things, but lift up their eyes to the heaven, their dearest countrie and quieted their spirits." On or about the first of August 1620, they set sail in the Speedwell from Delfthaven, and on the 15th both the Mayflower and Speedwell, with one hundred and twenty passengers on board some of whom were for the first time joining the company, sailed from Southampton. On the 23rd they put into Dartmouth, with the Speedwell leaking, and on the 31st sailed again. Further disaster to the Speedwell obliged a return to Plymouth, where the Speedwell was abandoned, and eighteen passengers, including Robert Cushman, gave up the voyage. On the 16th of September, a final departure from Plymouth took place and on the 21st of November, after a passage of sixty-six days, the Mayflower dropped anchor in Cape Cod harbor. "Like the down of the thistle they were wafted across the sea, and the seed they bore of popular government and religious freedom was planted on these western shores."

On the eleventh day of December (old style), the exploring party of Pilgrims who had left their ship, the Mayflower, in Cape Cod harbor, landed at Plymouth where they found "a place (as they supposed) fitt for the situation; at least it was ye best they could find and and ye season and their presente necessities made them glad to accept of it. So they returned to their shippe again with this news to ye rest of their people, which did much comforte their harts."

On the 26th of December the Mayflower dropped her anchor in the harbor of Plymouth.

LANDING OF THE PILGRIMS.

(SEE FRONTISPICE.)

When the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth they were not only outside of the limits of their patent, on a territory of a company from which they had received no grant, but they had settled themselves where the natives of the soil might dispute their right of occupation. They exercised tact, wisdom and good judgment in their dealings with the natives and thus secured their friendship. "By the gift from Massasoit," says Davis, "the Pilgrims, without charter from the King, or patent from the Northern Virginia Company, obtained a foothold and possession, which under a charter or patent alone would have been usurpation and robbery." A patent, however, was necessary to establish their rightful claim, and the Mayflower carried the news to England of the place of their landing, as well as an application to the Northern Virginia Company, for a suitable grant. After the Pilgrims sailed from England, the Northern or Plymouth Company secured a new charter from the King, dated the 5th of November 1620.

The first civil act of the Pilgrims after their arrival in Cape Cod Harbor, was to draw up a compact or "combination," as it is called by Bradford, which was signed by the male members of the company, and became the foundation on which the structure of our government has been built. Under date of Nov. 21st, Mourt's Relation states that "this day, before we came to harbour, observing some not well affected to unity and concord, but gave some appearances of faction, it was thought good there should be an association and agreement, that we should combine together in one body, and to submit to such government and governor as we should, by common consent, agree to make and choose, and set our hands to this that follows, word for word."

THE MAYFLOWER COMPACT.

On the 11th day of November, 1620 (old style), there was drawn on the lid of a chest on board of the Mayflower, at Cape-Codd, and signed by forty-one of the principal men of the first band of Pilgrims, a platform of government known as the Compact, and which gave to these people the claim of being the first "Signers" of this important instrument.

The following is the full text of the Compact:

IN YE NAME OF GOD, AMEN.

On the same day John Carver was confirmed in the office of Governor. He had already been chosen Governor on board the Mayflower, and his confirmation was doubtless a mere form rendered necessary by the adoption of a constitution of government under which his official duties were to be performed. "In the cabin of the Mayflower, then" says Davis, "not only was the foundation stone of republican institutions on this continent laid, but the first New England town-meeting was held and the first elective officers chosen by the will of a majority." On the 27th of February the first recorded meeting on land was held in the common house "for appointing military orders," and Miles Standish was chosen captain.

THE BRADFORD FAMILY OF ENGLAND.

The name of Bradford is derived from the Saxon Bradenford or Broad-ford and is very ancient. Two towns of considerable size in England are known by this name: one in Wiltshire, near Bath, the other in Yorkshire, near Leeds.

One of the first martyrs who perished at the stake in "Bloody Queen Mary's" term was John Bradford, prebend of St. Paul's, and a celebrated preacher. He was born at Manchester in Lancashire about 1510; was committed to prison, Aug. 16, 1553, where he remained until his death. The following account is from Baker's Chronicle:

"April 24, 1557, Thomas Stafford second son of Lord Stafford, with two and thirty persons (English fugitives, set on by the French King), came from France with the intention of subverting the government of the detested Queen Mary. They attacked and took Scarborough Castle, in Yorkshire, but were driven out and conquered within two days, by the Earl of Westmoreland. Stafford was beheaded on Tower Hill, May 28, 1557, and the next day Bradford and two other of his associates were executed at Tyburn.

Bradford.

The early, energetic, and persevering opposition to sacerdotal intolerance exhibited by Governor Bradford, the founder of the New England family of this name, would seem to indicate him as a worthy descendant of the martyr's immediate family, and that he was so is rendered more probable from the fact that the town of Bradford, in Yorkshire, Manchester, the birthplace of the martyr, and Austerfield where Gov. Bradford was born thirty-three years after the martyr's death, are all in the North of England and near each other.

The Bradford family have Arms—Argent on a fesse sable three stags' heads erased or. Crest—A stag's head erased or.

William Bradford (1) lived at Austerfield about 1575, at which time he and John Hanson were the only subsidiaries there; Bradford being taxed on twenty shillings of land and Hanson at twenty shillings goods, annual value. He died in 1596, leaving issue.

1. William Bradford (2) who married Alice, daughter of John Hanson. He died July 12th, 1591. This William was the father of Governor William Bradford.

2. Thomas Bradford, of whom no record appears except that he had a daughter Margaret, baptized March 9, 1578.

3. Robert Bradford, baptized June 25, 1561, married Alice Wingate, Jan. 3, 1585.

4. Elizabeth Bradford, baptized July 16, 1570, married Janet Hill, Jan. 20, 1595.

William Bradford (2) who married Alice Hanson, had:

1. Margaret, born March 3, 1585, died young.

2. Alice, born Oct. 30, 1587.

3. Willam, the Pilgrim, born March, 1589.

THE BRADFORD AND ALLIED FAMILIES OF AMERICA.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD, son of William and Alice (Hanson) Bradford, was born in Austerfield, England, March, 1588. His father died in 1591, and the infant child was then received into the home of his grandfather the first William Bradford mentioned in this line. After the death of the latter in 1596, he was adopted into the family of his uncle, Robert Bradford, who resided in the little village of Scrooby, two miles from Austerfield, and near the estate of the Brewsters. A church was established on the Scrooby

DEPARTURE OF THE PILGRIMS.

Manor by William Brewster as early as 1606. Young Bradford was deeply impressed with the preaching of Rev. Richard Clifton and Rev. John Robinson, and united with the church, and was soon numbered with the "Separatists" and became a leader among them. By this course he incurred the enmity and open hostility of his relatives and neighbors. The company being threatened with persecution resolved to emigrate to Holland. In the autumn of 1607 Bradford and the other principal members of the Society made an agreement with a Dutch captain to embark at Boston, but he betrayed them to the magistrates, who committed some of them to prison and sent the rest to their homes. After several months of confinement Bradford escaped in the spring of 1608, and found his companions in Amsterdam, where he apprenticed himself to a silk weaver, a French Protestant. When he came of age he sold his land in England which he inherited from his father, and engaged in business on his own account, but for lack of experience he did not succeed and met with considerable loss. Removing with the rest of the company to Leyden, about 1609, he was eager and active in promoting the scheme of emigrating to an English colony. A patent was obtained for a tract of land in Virginia with the assistance of Sir Edward Sandys, then treasurer of that colony. It was important, however, in a great undertaking of this character that he should provide himself with a 'helpmeet'. He had learned the trade of fustian or frieze weaving, "and the announcement according to custom event" was made November 15, 1613, that William Bretfoort, fustian worker, a young man from Osterfeldt, England was affianced to Dorothy May, from Wetzbutz (Wesbeach) Cambridge, England. The bans were published in Leyden, but the marriage took place elsewhere, as on Dec. 9, 1613, William Brethfoort, aged 23 years, was married to Dorothy May, aged 16 years, in Amsterdam, Holland.

On Sept. 5, 1620, Bradford embarked at Southampton in the Mayflower, with the first hundred pilgrims that left for America. Obligated by stress of weather to put in at Plymouth harbor they signed a compact of government before landing according to which, John Carver, the first signer became Governor.

While engaged in the preparations for a final landing, the first great sorrow visited this little band of Pilgrims. During the absence of Bradford on one of his expeditions around the harbor of Cape Cod, his wife Dorothy fell overboard from the vessel and was drowned. After the days of mourning were over he resumed his duties and the following year Governor Carver died and on April 21, 1621, William Bradford was elected to succeed him and was continued in the office each year thereafter by the suffrage of the colonists. His authority was restricted at his own request in 1624 by a council of five and in 1633, by one of seven members. In the council he had a double vote. One of his first acts on assuming the duties of office was to send an embassy in July, 1621, to confirm the league entered into with the Indian Sachem Massasoit, the most influential and powerful of the native chiefs. His friendly relations with the Indians, who had known the English only as kidnappers were essential to the continued existence of the colony and its future prosperity. He understood the nature and character of the Indians and exhibited the combination of firmness and energy with patience and gentleness, that proved successful with the wily savage and prevented much bloodshed during the early years of the settlement. In 1622, Canonicus, Sachem of the Narragansetts, sent him a challenge in the form of a snakeskin of arrows. The Governor immediately returned the snakeskin filled with powder and shot. The sachem recognized the superiority of the pale face's equipments and immediately sued for peace.

From the beginning the colonists placed implicit confidence in Governor Bradford as a leader, but owing to his precarious health William Allerton was given him as an assistant. In 1623 the emigrants were reduced to famine, owing partly to the communistic system adopted at first and partly to the arrival of new comers without provisions, and Governor Bradford made several excursions among the Indians from whom he procured corn and beans and thus relieved the immediate wants of the colonists.

The fur-trading colony adjoining the Plymouth plantation in Boston harbor, provoked by their oppressions, a conspiracy among the Indians to exterminate all the English, which was revealed by Massasoit, and, on the advice of that chief, Miles Standish was sent by the Governor to put the ringleaders to death.

In 1624 the English adventurers who had supplied the capital for the establishment of the colony, relying on the profits of the fur-trade for their returns, were bought out, and eight of the most enterprising emigrants for a six years' monopoly of the trade assumed all the obligations of the colony.

In 1629 a patent was obtained from the New England Council—a band of English noble-men who in 1620 received from King James absolute title to the property in the colony, lying between 40 and 48 degrees of north latitude—conferring upon William Bradford, his heirs and associates and assigns the title to the land on which Plymouth plantation was situated.

In 1624 the Governor and his Assistants were constituted a judicial court and afterwards the supreme tribunal of the colony ; in 1629, legislation, in which up to that time all the freemen took part, was vested in a General Court to which all of the towns sent representatives, and in 1640, at the request of the General Court, Governor Bradford conveyed to it the title of the colony, reserving to himself only his proportion as a settler previously agreed upon. For one period of two and one of three years he declined re-election as Governor, but was returned to the office every other year until his death. He took a prominent part in all the councils which were held at his house, and in all the affairs, civil, political and military ; from his house at the foot of Burial Hill, each Sabbath morning the little company of worshippers, who all assembled there, marched in procession to the place of meeting.

Governor Bradford possessed a higher degree of literary culture than was usual among persons similarly circumstanced. He had some acquaintance with Latin and Greek and also with Hebrew : was well read in history, philosophy, etc. and much of his time was spent in literary work. "A Diary of Occurrences" covering the first year of the colony from the landing at Cape Cod, Nov. 9, 1620, till Dec. 18, 1621, was written by him in conjunction with Edward Winslow (London 1620). The manuscript of his principal work, The History of Plymouth Colony was lost for many years, but in 1846 was found in the library of the Bishop of London, at Fulham. Upon the petition of the United States Ambassador the Consistory Court of the Diocese of London, sitting at St. Paul's, March 25, 1897, ordered that the manuscript be delivered for transmission to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Ambassador Bayard, in whose custody it was placed, delivered it to the Governor of Massachusetts, May 26, 1897. This contains much additional and interesting data concerning the early history of the colony.

Governor Bradford married, 1st, Dorothy May, of Amsterdam, Holland, Nov. 30, 1615. She was born in Wiesbach, England, 1597; drowned in Cape Cod, Dec. 7, 1620. The only child of this marriage was:

John, born in Holland, married Martha, daughter of Thomas Bourne, of Marshfield, Mass., 1653, removed to Norwich, Conn. and died there without issue, 1676.

Governor Bradford married, 2d, Alice, daughter of Alexander Carpenter of Wrentham, England, and widow of Edward Southworth. She died 1675.

In his will dated May 9, 1657, Governor Bradford makes special mention of his wife as follows:

"My further will is that my dear and loving wife Alice Bradford, shall be the sole executrix of my estate, and for her future maintenance my will is that my stake in the Kenbecke trade be reserved for her comfortable subsistence as far as it will extend, and soe further in any such way as may be judged best for her."

"I further request and appoint my much beloved Christian friends, Mr. Thomas Prince, Capt. Thomas Willet and Lieutenant Thomas Southworth to be the supervisors of the disposing of my estate according to the promises, confiding much in their faithfulness."

The issue of the marriage of Gov. Bradford and Alice Carpenter-Southworth was:

I. WILLIAM born June 17, 1624, married, 1st, Alice Richards, 1654, 2d, Widow Wiswall, 3d, widow Holmes.

II. MERCY, married Benjamin Vermages of Boston, June 15, 1648, lived in Plymouth.

III. JOSEPH, born 1630, married Jael, daughter of Rev. Peter Hobart of Hingham, Mass., May 25, 1664. He died July 10, 1715.

SECOND GENERATION.

JOHN BRADFORD, only child of Gov. William and Dorothy (May) Bradford no issue, did not come to this country with his parents in the Mayflower and the date of his arrival is not known. He was of Duxbury 1645, and of Marshfield, Mass. 1653. He was deputy to the General Court from both places and was also a Lieutenant. He married Martha, daughter of Thomas and Martha Bourne, of Marshfield, Mass., and in 1653 removed to Norwich, Conn. He was a townsman of Norwich in 1671, but his name seldom appears on the records. His farm in Duxbury was sold by "John Bradford, gentleman" to Christopher Wadsworth in 1664. His will was exhibited at the County Court in Norwich, Conn., Sep. 1676. His widow married, after a short interim, Lieut. Thomas Tracy, of Norwich. John Bradford left no issue.

SECOND GENERATION.

MAJOR WILLIAM BRADFORD.

ELDEST SON OF GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD, BY HIS SECOND WIFE MRS. ALICE SOUTH-WORTH, NEE CARPENTER.

Major William Bradford was born June 17, 1624. He resided at Stony Brook (Kingston), probably in the same house that had belonged to his father, and the location can be easily traced at the present time. One tree of the old apple orchard that he planted was still remaining as a land mark in 1876. He was next to Miles Standish the chief military man of the colony and bore the rank of Major. In 1662, when Wamsutta or Alexander, the successor of Massasoit was suspected of designs against the English, he was with Major Winslow when the chieftain was surprised and taken prisoner. The next eventful period of his life was during 1675-6. He was chief in command of the forces from Plymouth in the great Narragansett Fort Fight when the attack was made on King Philip's stronghold. In that desperate midwinter encounter both parties fought for their very existence when nearly a thousand Indians fell a sacrifice, and of the attacking force eighty were killed and one hundred and fifty wounded. During the engagement Major Bradford received a musket ball in his flesh which he carried the remainder of his life.

He was Assistant Treasurer and Deputy Governor of Plymouth from 1682 to 1686, and from 1689 to 1691, when the colonial government terminated. He was a member of Sir Edmund Andrew's Council 1687 to 1688. He was afterwards chosen a councillor of Massachusetts. In the year 1689 he is styled by the people of Rehoboth as the Worshipful Major Bradford." It has been thought by some that this title might have been given him in connection with the Masonic Fraternity but there is no evidence of the existence of any Masonic Lodge in this country earlier than 1730-3.

Major Bradford's estate comprised the whole of the present village of Stony Brook, north of the brook, extending to the bounds of Duxbury, besides tracts of land in other parts of the town. All that portion first mentioned was bequeathed to his four younger sons, Israel, Ephraim, David and Hezekiah.

A large inheritance from his father is described on the records under date of June 1, 1663. "Whereas there was a grant by the Court of an addition of land unto Mr. William Bradford Sen. as appears upon record which was not layed out nor bounded in his lifetime; and whereas Captaine William Bradford the son of Mr. William Bradford Sen., did make request unto the Court that the same might bee performed, the Court held at Plymouth on the third of October 1662 did appoint Mr. William Collyeare and Mr. John Alden, Assistants, to view and bound an addition adjoyning unto the lands which the said William Bradford possesseth. Now wee, the above named Assistants, have this twentyeth of May 1663, viewed and bounded as followeth: on the northeast from a small rundelett that runneth downe to a place commonly called the Tussukes [now called Tussock Brook] and so to range alonge northerly by Plymouth bounds next the bounds of Duxburrow and so as to the brooke that runes into black waters to the place where the old path went to the bay. So ranging downe the brooke a mile in length."

WILLIAM COLLYEARE

JOHN ALDEN

Major Bradford died Feb. 20. 1704 and was buried by the side of his father on the ancient burial hill at Plymouth. On his tombstone is the following inscription:

*Here Lyes the Body of the Honourable Major William Bradford who Expired February ye 20, 1703-4
aged 79 years.*

He lived long, but still was doing good
And in his country's service lost much blood
After a life well spent he's now at rest
His very name and memory is blest "

"Major William Bradford in his will gives to David his house after his mother's decease; to John the land he then lived on; and also "my father's manuscripts, being a narrative of the beginning of New Plymouth; to Thomas, land in Norwich (which was his uncle John's); to Joseph, land at Norwich; to Samuel his right of commons in the Duxbury; to Israel Ephraim, David and Hezekiah, his estate; enjoining upon them to sell it to none that do not bear the name of Bradford, and be not descended from him; to Israel, a house; to David, a silver bowl; not to be alienated from the family of Bradford; to Hezekiah, a gold ring;" to Samuel, his Latin books; "to encourage him in bringing one of his sons to learning, which said books it is my will, that they shall by him be given to his said son whom he shall so bring up"

He married 1st, Alice, daughter of Thomas Richards of Weymouth.

Thomas Richards 1630, came it is supposed in the Mary and John, with sons James and John to Weymouth, Mass. He was made freeman May 13, 1640, and died soon after Dec. 17, 1650. His will, made at Hull on that day, proved Jan. 28th following, names sons John James, Samuel, Joseph and Benjamin, calling the last two minors; and daughters Mary, Ann, Alice and Hannah; the latter died 10th, Nov. following. His widow Wilthian, mother of these children, in her will of July 1679, proved November following, mentions only James John and Ann, widow of Ephraim Hunt, as then living; Mary married 1st Dec. 1641. Thomas Hinckley of Barnstable, afterwards Governor of that Colony, and died June 24, 1659; Alice, married Major William Bradford (2), Deputy Governor of the same Colony.

Alice Richards the first wife of Major William Bradford died 12th Dec. 1671. He married 2d Widow——Wiswall; married 3d Mrs. Mary, widow of Rev. John Holmes, second minister of Duxbury, who died Jan. 6, 1714. She was the daughter of John Atwood of Plymouth son of Stephen Atwood and Abigail Dunham, daughter of John Dunham, of Plymouth. The Atwood homestead stood near the spot where the exploring party of the Pilgrims had their first encounter with the Indians, before landing at Plymouth.

THIRD GENERATION.

LINE OF MAJOR WILLIAM BRADFORD ELDEST SON OF GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD BY HIS SECOND WIFE MRS. ALICE SOUTHWORTH NEE CARPENTER.

1 MAJOR JOHN BRADFORD, eldest son of Major William and Alice (Richards) Bradford, was born Feb. 20, 1653, died Dec. 8, 1736. He lived at the house, still in existence, near the railroad at the landing. This house was partially burned by the Indians during Philip's War. The account of the affair states that "Major Bradford had removed to the guard-house, and was returning in company with others to take some goods away when he discovered his house to be on fire, and saw an Indian on the brow of Abram's Hill, waving his blanket and shouting to his comrades that the white men were coming. They fled into a dense swamp by the frog pond at the base of the hill and were pursued by the Major, who fired at them, killing one as he supposed, having seen him fall, but on reaching the spot was surprised at not finding the body. Subsequent events showed that the Indian was only wounded—severely—and was able to crawl behind a log of fallen wood, and thus escaped notice. After the war was over the affair was explained to Major Bradford by the Indian, and the marks of the wound in his side were shown."

Major Bradford held many positions of trust and responsibility in the colony. He was a deputy to the General Court from 1689 to 1691. He was the first representative to the General Court of Massachusetts from Plymouth. He was the principal founder of the new town (Kingston) and a promoter of its interests by gifts of land for public purposes.

The General Court passed an Act in November 1717, setting off the north part of Plymouth, with a small portion of Plympton and Pembroke as a precinct or parish.

By order of the General Court, Major Bradford issued on the 13th of August, 1720, the first warrant for a town meeting to be held on the 29th of the same month and at that meeting he was elected Moderator. He deeded the land for the church and on June 15, 1721, he deeded a lot of land to the minister on which was soon erected the parsonage house.

He married Feb. 6, 1674, Mercy Warren, daughter of Joseph Warren, with whom he lived 62 years. Joseph was the son of Richard Warren, twelfth signer of the Mayflower Compact.

The ancestry of the Warren family has been traced by English writers to a Norman baron of Danish extraction. The Normans and Danes were united in their efforts to make a settlement in the northern part of France, and ultimately succeeded in obtaining a footing in that part of the country of which from the former took the name of Normandy. One of these barons became connected by marriage with other distinguished families, among whom was a Danish Knight who "had Grennora, Herfastus, Wevia, Werina, Davolina and Sainfra.

"Of these, Grennora married Richard, Duke of Normandy, who had Richard, the father also of Richard, who, dying without issue, was succeeded in the dukedom by his brother Robert, the father of King William the Conqueror, who, by Maud, daughter of Baldwin, Earl of Flanders, had Robert Duke of Normandy, Richard, Duke of Bernay, in Normandy; William King of England, and several daughters, one of whom named Gundred, was married to William the first Earl of Warren and Surrey."

Richard Warren, the Plymouth Father, is of the same line of English ancestry as Peter Warren, the ancestor of Gen. Joseph Warren, who fell at Bunker Hill. Richard Warren came in the Mayflower 1620, leaving wife, Elizabeth, and five daughters to come on the third ship 1623. He died in 1628. His children were:

MARY, who married 1628, Robert Bartlett.

ANN, married 19th April, 1633, Thomas Little.

SARAH, married March 28th, 1634, John Cooke, Jr.

ELIZABETH, married 1636, Richard Church.

ABIGAIL, married 1639, Anthony Snow, of Marshfield.

Nathaniel and Joseph.

JOSEPH WARREN, called in the Warren Genealogy, the oldest son of Richard, was held in high esteem. He was a representative by annual election 1681-6, and died in 1689. He married Priscilla, daughter of John Faunce, and sister of the famous Ruling Elder, Thomas Faunce.

JOHN FAUNCE, of Plymouth, came in the Ann, 1623, a young man. He married, 1633, Patience, daughter of George Morton, and had children, Priscilla, who married Joseph Warren; Mary, married July 15, 1658, William Harlow; Patience, married Nov. 20, 1661, John Holmes; Sarah, married Feb. 26, 1663, Edward Dotey; Thomas, born 1647; Elizabeth, 1648; Mercy, born 1657, married Nathaniel Holmes; John, Joseph.

THIRD GENERATION.

LINE OF MAJOR WILLIAM BRADFORD, ELDEST SON OF GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD BY HIS SECOND WIFE, MRS. ALICE SOUTHWORTH NEE CARPENTER.

II WILLIAM BRADFORD. (3). Second child of Major William and Alice (Richards) Bradford was born March 11, 1655. He resided in Kingston, Mass., and died there in 1687.

He married 1679, Rebecca Bartlett, of Duxbury, Mass., daughter of Benjamin, son of Robert Bartlett.

This name was originally spelt Barttelot and the first of the family came to England with William the Conqueror, and seated himself at Ferring, county Sussex, and in the family pedigree is stated to have been buried at Stopham in 1100 where he had grants of land. In the old Norman church at that place are marble slabs with inset figures of brass, showing a regular succession of Bartletts from John, deceased 1428, to the present time.

The original coat armour of the Barttelot family was Arms—Sable, three sinister falconer's—gloves, argent, arranged triangularly, two above, one below, pendant, bands around the wrists and tassels, golden.

These were the arms for some centuries. Near the close of the 15th century, one of the crests, the castle, was granted to John Barttelot, who, in command of the Sussex troops, captured the castle of Fontenoy in France.

In the 16th century the swan crest was introduced to commemorate the right of the family to keep swans upon the river Arun, a right granted by William the Conqueror.

Various quarterings have since been added through the allied families of the Bartletts. The Gloucestershire branch, probably at a much later period were given Arms—Quarterly, per fesse indented argent and gules four crescents counterchanged.

Robert Bartlett, the Plymouth ancestor, was born at Gloucestershire, England, about 1606 and came to New England in 1623 in the Ann, the third ship which left the old country for Plymouth. He was the progenitor of W. I. Ashmead Bartlett, who married the Baroness Burdett Coutts.

Robert Bartlett was a prosperous farmer and settled in and around what was subsequently known as the Warren farm, near the "Pine Hills," in a district called Earl River, Plymouth, Mass, and he probably owned the whole domain of the second parish of Plymouth, called Manomet Ponds, and gave it to one of his sons. The old colony records contain his nuncupative will dated Sept. 19, 1696, and an inventory of his estate of the same date, which was also the year of his death. He married Mary, daughter of RICHARD Warren, of the Mayflower, twelfth signer of the Compact.

Robert Bartlett by his wife Mary (Warren) Bartlett had issue Joseph and Benjamin.

Benjamin Bartlett, the second son of Robert and Mary (Warren) Bartlett, was born about 1633, died 1691. He was a man of some means for those days. He had a farm valued at £140 and other property amounting to £250. He married Sarah Brewster (born about 1635), daughter of Love Brewster, who came with his father Elder William Brewster in the Mayflower.

Elder William Brewster, was born in England 1559-60. He was the son of William Brewster, who was appointed by Archbishop Sandys in January 1575-6, receiver of Scrooby and all its liberties in Nottinghamshire, and also baliff of the Manor House, to hold both offices for life.

The Essex family of Brewsters, one of considerable antiquity bore Arms.—Azure a chevron ermine between three estoiles argent. Elder William Brewster was matriculated at Peterhouse College, Cambridge University, Dec. 3, 1580. After leaving the University he entered into the service of William Davison, Queen Elizabeth's ambassador to Scotland and Holland, who found him so capable and faithful that he reposed the utmost confidence in him. While negotiating with the United Provinces, Davison entrusted him with the keys of Flushing; and the States of Holland, in recognition of his merit, presented him with a golden chain. When, in 1587, Davison incurred the displeasure of the Queen, Brewster remained his steadfast friend.

He held the office of Post of Scrooby from 1590 to 1607, succeeding his father. It was then an office under appointment from the government, and not, as afterwards, an employment for the accommodation of the public. While holding his official position, he occupied the Manor House at Scrooby, which had been the residence of archbishops and royalty. In Sept. 1607 he resigned his office.

Brewster.

Not agreeing with the forms of the Established Church he withdrew from its communion, and united with Rev. Richard Clifton and Rev. John Robinson. The newly formed Society met on the Sabbath at his house.

During the year 1608 he removed with the Nonconformist Society to Leyden, Holland and was appointed Elder of the Independent Church then fully organized. While residing in Leyden, he engaged there with Thomas Brewer, in publishing ecclesiastical treatises. This publication enraged King James I, through whose influence Brewer was imprisoned and Brewster's liberty was frequently imperilled. "He sailed in the Mayflower in 1620 and arriving at Plymouth, with the most submissive patience, bore the most trying hardships to which his old age was subjected, lived abstemiously, and after having been in his youth the companion of Ministers of State, the representative of his sovereign, familiar with the magnificence of courts, and the possessor of a fortune, sufficient not only for the comforts, but for the elegancies of life, this humble puritan labored steadily with his own hands in the field for daily subsistence. Yet he possessed that happy electricity of mind which could accommodate itself with cheerfulness to all circumstances; destitute of meat, of fish and bread, over his simple meal of clams, would he return thanks to the Lord, that he could "suck of the abundance of the seas, and of treasures hid in the sand." He enjoyed a healthy old age, and was sick but one day, when he died April 16, 1644. "The good Elder fought as he prays, and although he would far rather convert an enemy than hurt one, he would not dream of allowing him the first fire."

He left a library of over 300 volumes, (valued at £43) of which 64 were in the classic language. His whole estate was £150. He early removed to Duxbury, and settled in the neighborhood of Capt. Standish, and his house was afterwards occupied by his son Love. At his death his estate was divided among his two sons, who met after his funeral at Governor Bradford's in Plymouth, and in the presence of the Governor, Mr. Prence, Mr. Winslow and Capt. Standish, determined mutually on the division.

Many years ago, on a piece of land which was originally included in the limits of his farm was found a small silver spoon bearing the initials J. B.

A family tradition states that Elder Brewster planted on his farm the first apple tree in New England. At the time of the Revolution the original tree was gone; but there had sprung up from its roots another which was of a large size and known as the "Brewster tree."

His wife died in 1627. His children were:

- I. JONATHAN, born at Scrooby in Nottinghamshire, Aug. 12, 1598.
- II. PATIENCE, born about 1600; came in the Ann, July 1623; died 1634; married Aug. 5, 1624, Thomas Prince.
- III. FEAR, born about 1603, came in the Ann 1623; died Dec. 12, 1684, married in 1627 to Isaac Allerton, she being his second wife.
- IV. A child, died at Leyden, June 20, 1609.
- V. LOVE came in the Mayflower 1620, married May 15, 1634, Sarah, daughter of William Collier of Duxbury, Mass.
- VI. Wrestling, came in the Mayflower, 1620; Bradford says he "dyed a younge man unmarried." Subsequent research shows that Wrestling Brewster lived in Portsmouth, N. H.; married there and left children. The descendants maintain that he was the son of Elder William Brewster.

JONATHAN (1), settled in Duxbury, Mass.; was one of the prominent men in the formation of its settlement, and in the establishment of its church. He sometimes practiced before the courts as an attorney, and is also styled gentleman. He received grants of land in Duxbury, and likewise a ferry, (employing Peter Meacock in its management). He was frequently the town's deputy to the General Court. He removed to New London, Conn., and established by appointment a trading post on lands, purchased of Uncas, Chief of the Mohegans, and afterwards called Brewster's, Nick. He married Lucretia — and had William, Mary, married John Turner, of Scituate, Nov. 12, 1645; Jonathan, born 1627; Benjamin, who removed to Norwich, then to New London, where he married Anna Dart in 1659, and had Anna, 1662; Jonathan, 1664; Daniel, 1667; William, 1669; Benjamin, 1670.

Love Brewster, fifth child and second son of Elder William Brewster, was admitted freeman 1636. He early removed to Duxbury and settled with his father by the bay side, and afterward sold the estate to Samuel Eaton. He married Sarah Collier, daughter of William Collier, one of the first settlers of Duxbury. The will of Love Brewster is dated Oct. 1, 1650. His children were:

- I. SARAH, married about 1600, Benjamin Bartlett, son of Robert and Mary (Warren) Bartlett.
- II. Nathaniel, the eldest son, lived in Duxbury, Mass., and died in 1676. He married Sarah—but, as far as known, left no children.
- III. William.
- IV. Wrestling.

Benjamin Bartlett (1) married for his 2d wife Cecelia — 1678, who died about 1691. His children were all by the first wife.

Benjamin Bartlett (2) son of Benjamin (1) and Sarah (Brewster) Bartlett, inherited his father's farm and lands at Rochester and a double portion of his property. He married Ruth, daughter of William Pabodie (or Peabody), son of John Pabodie. William Pabodie of Duxbury, born 1629, died Dec. 13, 1707, was a man much employed in public affairs, and of much respectability. He married Elizabeth Alden, Dec. 26, 1644, daughter of John Alden, the Pilgrim, and Prescilla Mullens, his wife.

By his wife Ruth Pabodie Benjamin Bartlett (3) had

THIRD GENERATION.

LINE OF MAJOR WILLIAM BRADFORD ELDEST SON OF GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD BY HIS SECOND WIFE MRS. ALICE SOUTHWORTH NEE CARPENTER.

III THOMAS BRADFORD. Third child of Major William and Alice (Richards) Bradford was born about 1660. By his father's will he received lands in Norwich, Conn., to which place he removed and died there 1708. In connection with his brother-in-law, Nehemiah Smith, Jr., he purchased land on the west side of Nehantic Bay, called the Soldier's Farm, having been given by the Legislature to five of Capt. Mason's soldiers for services in the Pequot war. On the north part of this land was a farm of 200 acres where Thomas Bradford settled. His home was not far from the northwest corner of what was then known as New London, but would now lie in the town of Salem.

In a recent work by Mary E. Perkins, of Norwich, entitled "Old Houses Ancient Town of Norwich," etc., she says, on page 282: "As we now turn down the road leading to Dr. Gulliver's we come to the house which has always been regarded as the oldest of the Huntington homesteads. We have found from the records that this was the Bradford home lot, which, with the Bradford house, were sold to—Huntington, Jun'r. in 1691.

"We are unable to say whether the present house was built in 1719, when the land was first given to Joshua [Huntington] or after 1740, by Jabez [Huntington]. In the latter case the house must have been the former house of Joshua, in the former the old Bradford homestead."

Thomas Bradford married Ann Smith, daughter of Nehemiah Smith, of Norwich, Conn. Nehemiah Smith was first of New Haven, 1645. He connected himself with the association that settled Norwich in 1660, and removed to that plantation, where he died in 1684. By his wife Ann, he had four daughters, Mary, wife of Samuel Raymond; Ann, wife of Thomas Bradford; Elizabeth, wife of John Raymond and Experience who was married 1st Nov. 1677 to Joshua Abel.

- IV. WILLIAM, baptized at Montville, 1695.

THIRD GENERATION.

LINE OF MAJOR WILLIAM BRADFORD ELDEST SON OF GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD BY HIS SECOND WIFE MRS. ALICE SOUTHWORTH NEE CARPENTER.

IV ALICE BRADFORD, fourth child of Major William and Alice (Richards) Bradford, was born about 1680; died 1745. She married 1st, March 29, 1679 Rev. William Adams of Dedham, Mass., son of William (2) son of William (1).

WILLIAM ADAMS was of Cambridge 1635 or earlier, admitted freeman 22 May 1639; removed to Ipswich probably before 1642. His children were William, Nathaniel, Samuel.

WILLIAM ADAMS (2) son of William (1), born about 1620. His children were John, William; born 27 May 1650.

REV. WILLIAM ADAMS (3) was born at Ipswich, May 27, 1650; died Nov. 17, 1685, graduated at Harvard 1671 and became pastor of the church at Dedham, Dec. 3, 1673. He was a successful preacher and was voted a salary of one hundred pounds. He married, 21 Oct. 1674, Mary daughter of William Manning, of Cambridge, and had Mary, born 12 Nov. 1675, died soon; Eliphalet, 26 March, 1677, a distinguished minister of New London; William, 17 Jan. 1679. His wife died 24 June, 1679; he married 29 March following, Alice, daughter of Major William Bradford.

CHILDREN OF ALICE BRADFORD BY HER MARRIAGE TO REV. WILLIAM ADAMS.

1. ELIZABETH ADAMS, born Feb. 23, 1681; married 1st. Rev. Samuel Whiting of Windham, Sep. 4, 1696, when she was but sixteen years of age, and her children were distinguished; 1st Col. William Whiting engaged in the French war; 2nd. Rev. John Whiting of the second church in Windham (Scotland parish) and resigning his office he was judge of probate and also colonel; 3d, Col. Nathan Whiting; 4th, Mary, born 1712; married Nov. 23, 1727, Rev. Thomas Clap, her father's successor in Windham and afterward President of Yale College; her daughter Mary Clap, who married Daniel Wooster of New Haven; and Temperance Clap, who married Timothy Pitkin, of Farmington.

2. ALICE ADAMS, born April 3, 1682, married Rev. Nathaniel Collins, the first minister of Enfield, Conn. She died Feb. 19, 1725; he died 1756.

3. WILLIAM ADAMS, born Dec. 17, 1683.

4. ABIEL ADAMS, was born Dec. 15, 1685, after the death of her father, who died Aug. 17, 1685. She married 1707, Rev. Joseph Metcalf, minister of Falmouth, a native of Dedham, born 1682, died May 24, 1720. They had 11 children.

After the death of Mr. Adams, Alice Bradford married in 1687, Major James Fitch, of Norwich, Conn., son of Rev. James Fitch, who was descended from a very distinguished English family of this name.

Sir Thomas Fitch, the immediate progenitor of the American family of this name, was born in Bocking, England 1590; died 1645. He was a judge of much distinction and was created a baronet by Charles I. He married Anna Pew, who survived him, and came to America with her three younger sons (two older ones emigrated previously). Some daughters and perhaps other sons, remained in England. The five sons who came to America were Thomas, Rev. James, Joseph, who settled at Windsor, Conn., and had three sons and two daughters; Samuel, who settled at Hartford and had two sons; and John who settled at Windsor and had no children.

The original spelling of the name was Ffytche, probably of Welch origin. The family from which Sir Thomas Fitch descended, resided at Thorpe Hall, county Lincoln, England, and was a branch of the family of Ffytche of Danbury Place, and Woodham Walter, County Essex. This family bore Arms—Vert, a chevron between three leopards' heads or. Crest—A leopard's face or, pierced with a sword, in bend sinister ppr., hilt and panel of the first. Motto—Spes juvat.

Rev. James Fitch, said to be son of Sir Thomas Fitch and Anna Pew, was born at Bocking, County of Essex England, Dec. 24, 1622. He was well advanced in his studies when he came to this country in 1638, at the age of sixteen. After a long and thorough course of preparation for the ministry under Revs. Hooker and Stone, of Hartford, he was ordained in 1646 as pastor of the Congregational Church at Saybrook and remained there until 1660, when, with the greater portion of his congregation he removed to and founded the town of Norwich, and continued as pastor of the Norwich church until 1696, when he became disabled from further active service by a stroke of the palsy. In 1702 he retired to Lebanon, which he had previously founded and named, and where he spent the remaining years of his life. He was called by Cotton Mather "the holy and acute Mr. Fitch." An election sermon, which he preached by invitation before the Colonial Assembly, received the compliment of being the first election sermon ever printed. To the Mohegan Indians he not only preached in their own language, but strove by gifts of his land to induce them to adopt the habits of civilization. This called forth a letter of thanks from the General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut, accompanied by an appropriation for the use of his assistants, and a committal to his charge of the Indians captured in King Philip's War. To his influence, indeed, the colony was largely indebted for the co-operation of Uncas, Owaneco, and other Indians in that war, in which he had also served as a chaplain with such acceptableness as to call forth from the Assembly an urgent request that he would act again in the same capacity. He has been justly characterized as "a nice, kind and good man, and greatly beloved by his people, and who, during the fifty years of his ministry, exercised a beneficent and extended influence not only in spiritual matters but in secular affairs—in things pertaining to the welfare of the Colony, and the good order and prosperity of the new plantations." Bishop Lee in a discourse delivered at the Norwich Jubilee some years since, said: "He made early efforts to instruct the natives in the truths of the Gospel. He took pains to acquire their tongue and was a frequent visitor in their wigwams. He impressed them with his own sincerity and benevolence, so that others, who, like Uncas himself remained obstinate in their unbelief, accorded him their entire confidence and regarded him with affectionate respect."

Rev. Mr. Fitch married 1st October, 1648, Abigail, daughter of Rev. Henry Whitfield, minister, of Guilford, Conn. She died Sep. 9, 1659. He married 20 October, 1664, Priscilla, daughter of Major John, and Anne (Peck) Mason. The children by his first wife (all born at Saybrook, Conn.) were James, born Aug. 2, 1649; Abigail, born August 1650, married Capt. John (son of Major John) Mason; Elizabeth, born January 1651, married Rev. Edward Taylor, of Westfield, Mass.; Hannah, born Sep. 1653; Samuel, born April 1655; Dorothy, born 1658, became the second wife of Nathaniel Bissell, of Windsor, Conn. By his second wife Mr. Fitch had issue: Daniel, born Aug. 16, 1670; Jabez, born April 1672; Ann, born April 1675, married Joseph (only son of Major William) Bradford, of Plymouth, (by his second wife).

Major James Fitch, eldest child of Rev. James and Abigail (Whitfield) Fitch, was born Aug. 2, 1649. He was a prominent and influential man in his day, and the owner of a vast amount of land, which he accumulated by legislative grants, by purchase from other grantees, and through his intimate connection with the Indians, of whom he was a noted friend and patron. Indeed, after the death of Major John Mason, he possessed more influence over the sachems than any one else in the colony. In 1684, he received from Owaneco the native right and title to a large tract, extending from the Quinebaug River, north of the present town of Brooklyn, Conn., westward forty-five miles, and northward to beyond the northern boundary of Massachusetts. Out of this, in 1686, he sold the town of Pomfret, consisting of 15,100 acres, for £30. In 1687 he received from the same Chief parcels of land in Plainfield, and Canterbury, several miles in extent. In addition, also, he owned land in various localities in the neighborhood of Norwich, and as one of Joshua's legatees, and an original proprietor of Windham, was allotted five one thousand acre shares, one located at Windham Centre, one at Willimantic, and three at Mansfield. He settled at Norwich, but lived in Preston, Plainfield and Canterbury, of which latter town he was the founder, having purchased the land, made the first clearing, laid it out in farm and house lots, and erected the first barn and framed house within its limits. He was a brave and experienced partisan soldier in the Indian wars; and active in politics, representing Norwich for several sessions, in the General Assembly, and was chosen in 1681, one of the Assistants of the Colony. An early patron of Yale College, to which he gave the glass and nails for its first edifice; he further renewed his interest by an endowment of 637 acres of land in Killingly township—an act which in the then peculiar situation of the infant institution (1701) insured its established permanence. He died in Canterbury, Conn., Nov. 10, 1727, aged 80.

Major Fitch married 1st, 1676, Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Major John Mason; she died Oct. 8, 1684. By her he had issue James, born 1678, died soon; James again, born 1679, died early, unmarried; Jedediah born April 17, 1681, married Elizabeth, and had issue Elizabeth, Peter; Samuel, born July 12, 1680; Elizabeth again, born 1684.

Major James Fitch married 2nd, Alice Bradford, daughter and fourth child of Major William Bradford.

[see 9th page]

JOSEPH BRADFORD, fourth and youngest child of Governor William and Alice (Southworth nee Carpenter) Bradford was born in 1630; died July 29, 1715. He resided in Kingston (then Plymouth) on Jones River, half a mile from the mouth at a place called Flat House Dock, perhaps from the circumstances that he lived in a house with a flat roof.

He married May 25, 1664 Joel (born 1643) daughter of Rev. Peter Hobart, son of Edmund.

Edmund Hobart, the progenitor of the family in America was born in Hingham, Norfolk England emigrated to New England in 1633, and settled in Hingham Mass. where he died in 1646. He represented the town of Hingham at the General Court of Mass. from 1639 to 1642.

LINE OF JOSEPH BRADFORD YOUNGEST CHILD OF GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD BY HIS SECOND WIFE MRS. ALICE SOUTHWORTH NEE CARPENTER.

II Elisha Bradford, son of Joseph and Jael (Hobart) Bradford, was a native of Plymouth in New England. The "Female Review" says of him: "He possessed good abilities and explored many sources that led him to literary distinction. As he was eminent in property; so piety, humanity and uprightness were the distinguishing characteristics of his life." He was married Sep. 7, 1719, to Bathsheba Le Broche, a French lady of elegant extraction and accomplishments. Her father was a native of Paris. Mr. Bradford, for one of his benevolent offices, being bound for a ship and rich cargo, belonging to a merchant of the same town, had the misfortune to lose the greater part of his interest. Being at this time (1760) considerably advanced in years, this circumstance, together with the loss of his eldest son, preyed fast upon his constitution, and he did not long survive to mourn the loss of what seemed not in his power to remedy."

CHILDREN OF ELISHA BRADFORD BY HIS WIFE BATHSHEBA LE BROCHE.

1. Hannah, born April 10, 1719.

2. Joseph, born Dec. 17, 1721.

This Deborah Bradford, eighth child of Elisha and Bathsheba (Le Broche) Bradford by her marriage to Jonathan Sampson, Jr., became the mother of one of the most remarkable women of the Revolution. Jonathan Sampson, Jr., her husband, was the son of Jonathan Sampson and Joanna Lucas, son of Isaac Sampson born 1660; married Lydia Standish, daughter of Alexander, son of Capt. Miles Standish; he was the son of Abraham Sampson, the ancestor.

Jonathan Sampson, by his wife Deborah (Bradford) Sampson, had a child Deborah, who, served in the ranks of the patriot army throughout the War of the Revolution in male attire, without her sex having been discovered.

Grinnell and Allied Families.

LINE OF DESCENT FROM GOVERNOR WILLIAM BRADFORD, JOHN ALDEN, WILLIAM MULLINS (MOLINES), JOHN TILLEY AND JOHN HOWLAND OF THE MAYFLOWER.

THE ancestry of the Grinnell family among the early settlers of America presents a remarkable combination of men who were well known in their day.

The Mayflower ancestry, beginning with the line of Governor Bradford, includes five signers of the Mayflower compact, together with their own and allied families, who were among the "Blessed Company"; six colonial governors, also deputy governors, magistrates, assistants, judges, lawyers, clergymen, military leaders, etc.

Matthew Grinnell, the ancestor, is first found at Newport, R. I., where he was admitted freeman in 1638. He was probably one of the numerous Huguenot refugees who fled from France to Holland after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

Of the children named in the will of Matthew are Matthew, Thomas and Daniel. His wife's name was Rose, her surname does not appear in the records.

Daniel Grinnell, son of Matthew and Rose Grinnell, was born in 1636. He married Mary Wodell, born 1640, daughter of William and Mary Wodell. They lived at Portsmouth and Little Compton, R. I. They had issue, Daniel (2), Richard and Jonathan.

Daniel Grinnell (2), son of Daniel (1), and Mary Wodell Grinnell, was born at Little Compton about 1665. He married Lydia Pabodie, daughter of William Pabodie, son of William Pabodie, the ancestor.

WILLIAM PABODIE, the ancestor, was born in England, 1619, and was an early settler of the Plymouth Colony. The Plymouth records state that he was "a man much employed in public affairs, and of much respectability." While not himself a Pilgrim he had the honor of marrying the daughter of a Pilgrim, Elizabeth Alden, born 1622 or 3, the first white woman born in New England. They were married Dec. 26, 1644. He with others, purchased in 1659, from the Seaconet tribe of Indians a large tract of land known by the name of Seaconet Point, now Little Compton, R. I. Until 1745 this was a part of Massachusetts. William Pabodie was one of the "twenty-nine persons who appeared at Plymouth, July 22, 1673 and proved their respective shares on the grant of land at Seaconet." He moved with his family to their new home in 1684.

John Alden, the Pilgrim, the father of Elizabeth (Alden) Pabodie, was the seventh and youngest signer of the Mayflower Compact. He was born in 1599, and had only just realized his majority when he put his name to the important document. His "powers of persuasion" were evidently appreciated by his friend Captain Miles Standish, and it was no fault of his that while acting as "proxy" in the courtship of the beautiful Priscilla Mullens or Molines he became the principal, and she thus became the mother of the first white child born in Plymouth Colony. Her father was William Molines, or as appears among the signers, William Mullins.

WILLIAM MOLINES, tenth signer of the Mayflower Compact, formed a part of the little colony at Leyden, Holland, where the Pilgrims met and formed their plans for the new settlement. He was one of the Huguenot refugees, and was descended probably from the ancient family of De Moulins. He died Feb. 21, 1621, "pious and well deserving, endowed also with considerable outward estate, and had it been the will of God that he had survived, might have proved a valuable instrument in his place." His will refers to his wife Alice and two children, who were left in England, a son William and a daughter Sarah.

WILLIAM PABODIE, who married Elizabeth Alden, daughter of John Alden and Priscilla Molines, had a daughter Lydia (born April 3, 1667, died July 15, 1748,) who married Daniel Grinnell (2).

Daniel Grinnell (2), by his wife Lydia (Pabodie) Grinnell, had Priscilla, born 1689, Pabodie born 1691, and George, born about 1700. These were probably all born at Saybrook, Conn., where the father had removed some time previous.

PABODIE GRINNELL eldest son of Daniel and Lydia (Pabodie) Grinnell, born in 1691, married Ruth Nettleton.

George Grinnell, (1) youngest child of Daniel (2) and Lydia (Pabodie) Grinnell, was born about 1700 in Saybrook, Conn. He married Mary Bull, daughter of Edward, son of John Bull,

JOHN BULL was born at Dennington in the parish of Stowe, County of Gloucester, England, about 1637. His wife Hannah, as appears by the Saybrook records, was born at the same place, February 3, 1639. John Bull settled first in Hartford, Conn., and removed thence to Saybrook. He was probably engaged in the Pequot war, as his name appears in the list of those referred to in the following:

"Feb. 7, 1678. The Town agreed that the Souldiers that went out of the Town in the Indian war shall have five acres apiece of Land, etc." John Bull, by his wife Hannah, had Edward and others.

EDWARD BULL, son of John and Hannah Bull, was born in the parish of Stowe, County of Gloucestershire, England, September 12, 1662; came with his parents to New England and settled in Saybrook. He married Mary Post and had several children, of whom Mary was one. She was married to George Grinnell.

George Grinnell, by his wife Mary (Bull) Grinnell, had seven children, of whom William was the eldest.

William Grinnell, son of George and Mary (Bull) Grinnell, was born 1726. He married Mary

William Grinnell died in 1761 as appears by the following, from the Colonial Records of Connecticut:

"Upon the memorial of Daniel Grinnell, administrator of the estate of William Grinnell, late of Saybrook, deceased, representing to this Assembly that the debts and charges due from said estate surmount the personal estate of said deceased £79, 6s., 9d. lawful money, and praying for liberty to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be sufficient to raise said sum with the incident charges arising thereon; Résolved, by this Assembly, that Joseph Spencer of Saybrook have liberty to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be sufficient to raise the said sum with the incident charges arising thereon, taking the directions of the Court of Probate in the district of Guilford therein."

William Grinnell by his wife Mary (—) Grinnell, had a son George.

George Grinnell, (2) son of William and Mary Grinnell, was born in Saybrook, Conn., July 14, 1750; died at Greenfield, Mass., March 1, 1844. He married Lydia Stevens, daughter of Col. Jonathan Stevens, son of Capt. James Stevens, of Amherst, Mass.

CAPT. JAMES STEVENS, born November 31, 1686, lived in Amherst, Mass., married 1713 Dorothy Frye, of Amherst, Mass.

They had, among other children, Jonathan.

COL. JONATHAN STEVENS, son of Capt. James and Dorothy (Frye) Stevens, was born at Andover, Mass., 1727. He served with distinction in the War of the Revolution. His first service was as private in Capt. Johnson's company, Col. Johnson's regiment of Massachusetts militia. In the Historical Sketches of Andover, page 377, appears the following:

"PAWLET, Oct. 1st, 1777.

"Loving Sister :—This will inform you that I am very well at present, and have been so ever since I came from home, and I hope you and all my friends enjoy the same state of health.

"We have been up to Ticonderoga, and took almost four hundred prisoners of the British army and returned one hundred of our men that were prisoners there.

"Our army have come from Ticonderoga down as far as Pawlet, about sixty miles, and expect to march to Stillwater very soon. So no more at present. I remain

Your loving brother,

JONATHAN STEVENS.

"To the Widow Lidia Peters in Andover."

COL Jonathan Stevens married Lydia Felch, daughter of Ebenezer Felch and Lydia Chandler.

(EBENEZER FELCH runs back to the Gov. Bradford line. An Ebenezer Felch born 1689, married Bridget Brown.)

Col. Jonathan Stevens, by his wife Lydia Chandler, had issue Lydia, who married George Grinnell (1).

GEORGE GRINNELL, by his wife Lydia (Stevens) Grinnell, had George (3).

Hon. George Grinnell, (3) son of George and Lydia (Stevens) Grinnell, was born in Greenfield, Franklin Co., Mass., December 25, 1786; graduated at Dartmouth College in 1808; studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1811. One of his first speeches to attract public attention appears to have been made in the year 1818, when he was only thirty years of age, at the convention which decided upon the location of Amherst Academy, which afterwards became Amherst College. Of this convention the History of Amherst College says:

"After which George Grinnell, Esq., who was secretary of the Convention, left his seat, taking his place in the aisle, and also delivered a very powerful and effective speech, still keeping the full attention of the Convention. The speech produced a new and different feeling throughout the house; and the result, when the vote was taken, was in favor of Amherst as the location of the College. The argument of Mr. Grinnell, delegate from the 'Poll Parish' in Greenfield was particularly convincing and is said not only to have carried the suffrages of the Convention but to have brought him so favorably before the public as to have had not a little influence in preparing the way for his election to Congress."

He was Prosecuting Attorney for Franklin County from 1824 to 1827, and was a representative in Congress from Massachusetts 1829 to 1839, and during this period was associated with all the great statesmen of the age, among whom were Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Adams, Polk, as well as many of the lesser lights. He took a leading part in all the great questions of the day, and his name appears quite as often in the columns of the Congressional Record as that of any man in Congress. He introduced and carried through many important measures. Probably no man in Congress did as much for improving the condition of the army, and in promoting the interests of the Revolutionary veterans and their widows and orphans as did he. Many a veteran or widow of a veteran would have become an inmate of the poorhouse or have been left to starve but for his efforts in calling the attention of Congress to their condition and introducing measures for their relief. He urged upon Congress the increase of pay of army officers, which up to that time remained the same as during the Revolution. He introduced a resolution "to inquire into the expediency of extending the benefits of five years' half pay now allowed by law to the widows and orphans of officers and soldiers of the militia and volunteers who died in the service of the United States; to the widows and orphans of officers and soldiers of the regular army who have died or shall die in the service, or in consequence of wounds received in the line of duty."

Mr. Grinnell took strong grounds in favor of the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia, and though not a pronounced Abolitionist, in the general sense was one of the pioneers in the movement which had its inception in that early day.

In December, 1838, he introduced a resolution in the petition presented from certain inhabitants of Nantucket, praying Congress to open international relations with the Republic of Hayti. His most active opponent was Henry A. Wise, of Virginia. The Congressional Report states that:

"Mr. Grinnell, who was entitled to the floor, addressed the House at some length in support of the petition—a right, he insisted, which had never been denied by the veriest despot on earth. He then expatiated on the great advantages that would accrue to this country by opening commercial negotiations with, and acknowledging the independence of Hayti, where we now labored under great disadvantages, owing to the inequality of duties between goods carried in American vessels and in those of other nations which had recognized the nationality of that Republic. Mr. Grinnell admitted that it did look to one sort of abolition, and that alone, viz.: the abolition of national distinctions founded on color, to which he was at a loss to conceive any possible objections."

On returning from Congress Mr. Grinnell gave his attention to the public affairs of his own State, and, though never an office-seeker, he held public office up to the day of his death. From 1838 to 1859 he was a member of the Board of Trustees of Amherst College, and in 1854 the degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by that institution. He was for four years—1849 to 1853—Probate Judge of Franklin County. He was President of the Troy and Greenfield R. R. and was prominent in other business enterprises. In politics he was identified with the old Whig party, and as Presidential Elector in 1840 he voted for William Henry Harrison. He was foremost in all works of benevolence and public improvement in his native town.

Mr. Grinnell married Eliza Seymour Perkins, daughter of Rev. Nathan Perkins, son of Nathan, son of Matthew, son of Deacon Joseph, son of Jacob, son of Joseph, son of John Perkins the ancestor.

The family of Perkins were originally settled in Warwickshire, and became possessed of the manors of Orton-on-the-Hill, Morebarne, Beanhills, and the Westons by purchase in the reign of Charles II. They bore Arms: Sable, an eagle, displayed, ppr., on a canton, dexter argent, a fesse, dancette, of the first; quartering, Steele, Farmer, Beardsley, Shirley, Duncomb, Kirkpatrick, Sharpe; Crest: a unicorn's head, issuing out of a ducal coronet. Motto: Toujours loyale.

JOHN PERKINS, the ancestor, was born at Newent, England, in 1590; died at Ipswich, Mass., 1654. He sailed in the ship Lyon for New England in 1630; arrived at Boston 1631; removed thence to Ipswich in 1633; admitted freeman, 1631; representation to the General Court, 1636. He married, about 1613, Judith ———, and had issue Jacob and other children.

JACOB PERKINS, son of John and Judith Perkins, was born in England, 1624; came to New England with his parents at the age of seven. He died at Ipswich, Mass., Jan. 29, 1700. He was a farmer and Sergeant of the train band. He married, first, in 1647, Elizabeth Lovell, daughter of Thomas Lovell. He married, second, Mrs. Demaris Robinson, widow of Nathaniel Robinson, of Boston. By his first wife he had Joseph and others.

DEACON JOSEPH PERKINS, tenth child of Jacob and Elizabeth (Lovell) Perkins, was born at Ipswich, Mass., June 21, 1674; died at Norwich, Conn., Sept. 6, 1726. He married Martha, daughter of Joseph and Dorothy (Parke) Morgan, (born 1680, died Sept. 6, 1726). The inventory of his estate was £2787, and included three farms, viz.: the homestead of 310 acres, and two others comprising nearly 1000 acres. By his wife, Dorothy (Morgan) Perkins, he had Matthew and other children.

MATTHEW PERKINS, son of Joseph and Dorothy (Morgan) Perkins, was born at Norwich, Conn., Aug. 31, 1713; died at Lisbon, Conn., May 3, 1773. He was a prosperous farmer and owned 1000 acres of land. He married Hannah Bishop. They had twelve children, among whom was Rev. Nathan Perkins, D. D.

REV. NATHAN PERKINS, D. D., son of Matthew and Hannah (Bishop) Perkins, was born May 12, 1749, and died June 18, 1838. He was for sixty-five years pastor of the church at West Hartford. He married Catharine Pitkin, born Feb. 22, 1757, daughter of Rev. Timothy Pitkin, of Farmington, Conn., son of Governor William (3), son of William (2), son of William Pitkin the ancestor.

HON. WILLIAM PITKIN, the progenitor of the family in America, who came from England in 1659, was possessed of great ability and tenacity of purpose. He was admitted freeman Oct. 9, 1662, and was appointed the same year Prosecutor for the Colony, and was appointed, by the King, Attorney General in 1664. From 1675 to 1690, a period of fifteen years, he annually represented Hartford in the Colonial Assembly. In 1676 he was chosen Treasurer of the Colony. He was often appointed by the Colony of Connecticut Commissioner to the United Colonies. In 1676 he and Major Talcott were appointed to negotiate peace with the Narragansett and other Indians. In 1690 he was elected a member of the Colonial Council, and continued to hold this position until his death. He was one of the principal planters of the Colony, having purchased a large tract of land on the east side of the river.

He married Hannah, daughter of Hon. Ozias and Mary (Woodward) Goodwin, the progenitor of the Goodwin family in Connecticut. The latter was born in England, 1596, and came to New England in company with Rev. Thomas Hooker and others. His wife was the daughter of Robert Woodward, of Braintree; County Essex, England. William Pitkin, by his wife Hannah (Goodwin) Pitkin, had eight children, of whom William (2) was the second.

HON. WILLIAM PITKIN (2), son of William (1) and Hannah (Goodwin) Pitkin, was born 1664; died April 5, 1723. He was educated by his father in the profession of the law. He was Judge of the County and Probate Courts, and Court of the Assistants from 1702 till 1711. Upon the establishment of the Superior Court, in 1711, he was appointed Judge of that Court, and in 1713 he was made Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. He represented Hartford in the General Assembly in 1696. In 1697 he was elected one of the Council of the Colony and was annually re-elected for twenty-six years till his death. He was one of the commissioners to receive the Earl of Belmont on his arrival in New York. He was Commissioner of War 1706-7. He was one of the committee to prepare the manuscript laws of the Colony in 1709; also committee on the revision of the laws. In 1718 he was appointed one of a committee of three by the General Assembly to build the first State House in the Colony at Hartford. He was a military officer in the company of his brother Roger. He built, in 1706, two fulling mills at Pitkin Falls, and did a large business in clothing and woolens in addition to his professional labors. He married, Oct. 24, 1669, Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. Caleb Stanley, and sister of his brother Roger Pitkin's wife. They had eleven children, of whom William (3) was the fourth child and eldest son.

GOVERNOR WILLIAM PITKIN (3), son of Hon William (2) and Elizabeth (Stanley) Pitkin, was born April 30, 1694; died Oct. 1, 1769. He was distinguished both in public and private life. He acquired from his father a thorough knowledge of business and public affairs, particularly of the laws and policy of the Colony. This, with his natural courtesy and ease of manner, soon brought him prominently before the public. He represented Hartford in the Colonial Assembly from 1728 to 1734. He was appointed Captain of the "train band" in 1730, and rose to the rank of Colonel in 1739. He was elected Speaker of the House in 1732, and was elected to the Council in 1734. He was Judge of the County Court from 1735 to 1752. He was appointed Judge of the Superior Court in 1741. He was Chief Justice of the Superior Court twelve years, and Lieutenant-Governor from 1754 to 1766, about twelve years. He was a strong advocate of colonial rights, and the first in the Colony to resist the "Stamp Act," which was passed in 1765, when Fitch was Governor and Pitkin Lieutenant Governor. When Governor Fitch and others of his Council, who thought it their duty, were taking the oath to support the "Stamp Act," Lieut-Gov. Trumbull and others of the Council remonstrated and left the Council Chambers while the oath was taken by Governor Fitch and his supporters. At the next election, May, 1766, when both Fitch and Pitkin were candidates for Governor, Pitkin was elected by a majority "so great," says the Connecticut Gazette of the day, "that the votes were not counted." The great popularity of Governor Pitkin and his policy in resisting the "Stamp Act," and his sudden removal by death while in office, gave to his deputy, Trumbull, the Governorship at the following election.

At the first meeting of the Colonies to form a plan of union, in 1754, Lieut-Gov. Pitkin and five others, with Benjamin Franklin as chairman, were chosen a committee by the Colonies, to meet at Albany, N. Y., and prepare a Constitution. The plan then presented was the germ of the Articles of Confederation, rearranged by Franklin in 1775, and adopted in 1777, under which the Colonies lived till the adoption of the Federal Constitution.

Governor Pitkin married Mary Woodbridge, daughter of Rev. Timothy and Mabel (Wyllys) Woodbridge, the sixth minister of the First Church of Hartford, son of Rev. John (2), son of Rev. John Woodbridge (1).

REV. JOHN WOODBRIDGE, of England, died Dec. 9, 1637, was rector of the parish of Stanton, near Highworth in Wiltshire, and a man "so able and faithful," says Cotton Mather, "as to obtain a high esteem among those that at all know the invaluable worth of such a minister." He married Sarah Parker, daughter of Rev. Robert Parker, a learned English divine, "who did so virtuously that her own personal character would have made her highly esteemed if a relation to such a father had not farther added unto the lustre of her character." They had issue, John (2).

REV. JOHN WOODBRIDGE (2), son of Rev. John (1) and Sarah (Parker) Woodbridge, was born 1613, died July 1, 1691. He became a Nonconformist, and at the age of twenty-one came to New England in the ship "Mary and John," in company with his uncle, Rev. Thomas Parker, and settled in Newbury, Mass. In 1643 he taught school in Boston. He, with others, negotiated the purchase from the Indians of the plantations on which the town of Andover grew up. He was ordained at Andover, Oct. 24, 1645, this being one of the earliest, if not the earliest, of the regular ordinations in New England. He returned in 1647 to England with his wife and family; was Chaplain of the Parliamentary Commissioners who treated with the King at the Isle of Wight, and afterwards minister at Andover, Hants and Barford, St. Martin (Wiltshire), until he was ejected at the Restoration. He returned to New England in 1663, and was made assistant to his uncle, Rev. Thomas Parker, at Newbury, remaining in office till Nov. 3, 1670. He was assistant of the Massachusetts Colony, 1683-4, and died at Newbury, March 17, 1695. He married Mercy Dudley (born Sept. 27, 1621, died July 1, 1691), daughter of Governor Thomas Dudley of the Massachusetts Colony.

GOVERNOR THOMAS DUDLEY, third Governor of Massachusetts Bay, was born in Northamptonshire, England, in 1576; died at Roxbury, Mass., July 31, 1653. He was the son of Capt. Roger Dudley. He obtained leave from Queen Elizabeth to volunteer his services under Henry IV, of France, says a tradition, at the siege of Amiens, and afterward helped to retrieve the fortune of the Earl of Lincoln by the faithful stewardship of his estates. A principal member of the Massachusetts Company which settled in Boston and vicinity, he came over in 1630 with the commission of Deputy Governor, which office he held till 1640, and again from 1645 till 1650. In 1644 he was appointed Major General of the Colony. After residing in Cambridge, Ipswich and Boston, he finally settled in Roxbury, where his estate was long possessed by his descendants. By his wife Dorothy ——— he had Mercy and other children. f2—

MERCY DUDLEY, daughter of Governor Thomas and Dorothy (——) Dudley, was baptized in England Sept. 27, 1621. She was married to Rev. John Woodbridge.

REV. JOHN WOODBRIDGE, by his wife Mercy (Dudley) Woodbridge, had issue Timothy and others.

REV. TIMOTHY WOODBRIDGE, son of Rev. John and Mercy (Dudley) Woodbridge, was born at Barford, St. Martins (Wilts); came (on his father's return) to New England in 1663; graduated at Harvard College in 1675; became a member of the First Church in Hartford, Conn., in 1683, but was not ordained till Nov. 1685. He was one of the principal ministers of the Connecticut Colony named as trustees and authorized by the General Assembly of Connecticut to found Yale College in 1699; was a Fellow of Yale from 1700 to 1732, and was offered the Rectorship after the resignation of Rector Outler in 1722; was a prominent member of the Saybrook Convention in 1708. He married Mehitable, daughter of Samuel Wyllys, widow of Rev. Isaac Foster, and also of Rev. Daniel Russell, of Charlestown, Mass.

SAMUEL WYLLYS, the father of Mehitable Woodbridge was the son of Governor George Wyllys.

GOVERNOR GEORGE WYLLYS, born at Fenny Compton, County Warwick, was the son of Richard Wyllys and Hester, daughter of George Chambers of Williamscote, County Oxford, Eng. His pedigree is traced back in England for several generations. In Camden's Visitation of Warwickshire in 1619 George Wyllys is described as living at Fenny Compton, with his wife Bridget, daughter of William Young, of Kingston Hall. The name of the wife he brought with him to New England was Mary ———, probably a second wife. In 1636 he sent his steward, William Gibbons, with twenty men, to Hartford to purchase and prepare for him a farm and dwelling house, and have everything in readiness for himself and family. He had been a partner with Robert Salstonstall and William Whiting in the Dover and Piscataqua patents. His homestead included the site of the famous Charter Oak. He married in Hartford in 1638, was chosen magistrate April 11, 1639; again in 1640, '43 and '44; Deputy Governor 1641, Governor 1642; and was one of the Commissioners of the United Colonies. He died in Hartford, March 9, 1644. His fourth child was Samuel.

SAMUEL WYLLYS, son of Governor George Wyllys, was born in 1632 in England; came with his parents to New England and was graduated at Harvard College, 1653. He was chosen magistrate in 1654, and continued in that office until 1685. In the absence of the Governor and Deputy Governor he was repeatedly appointed Moderator of the General Court. In 1661-2, 1664 and 1667 he was one of the Connecticut Commissioners for the United Colonies. He was extensively engaged in trade and often absent from the Colony conducting his business affairs with the West Indies. He was Assistant, 1680 to 1683. He married Ruth, daughter of Governor John Haynes.

GOVERNOR JOHN HAYNES, born 1594, was the son of John Haynes, of Old Holt, who purchased the manor and estate of Copford Hall. He came to New England in the "Griffin," arriving Sept. 3, 1633, with Rev. Thomas Hooker. His first knowledge of business was acquired under the instruction of his uncle, James Seymour, then engaged in the banking business at Auburn, N. Y. In 1843, before he reached his majority, he obtained a position with his cousin, Geo. Bird, a large wholesale New York dry goods house, where his business qualifications were rewarded by a partnership in the course of a few years. He became a partner in 1850, and soon after the death of his cousin in 1857 he formed a copartnership with Levi P. Morton (afterward Governor of the State of New York) under the firm name of Morton, Grinnell & Co., in the wholesale commission dry goods business. This was one of the best known firms in the country, and continued in successful operation until the breaking out of the Civil War, when the entire loss of a large Southern trade compelled the firm to suspend and settle with their creditors on a basis of thirty-three and a third per cent. He subsequently engaged in the banking business and was very successful. In 1873, prior to the great financial panic, he called his creditors together and settled his own and his old firm's indebtedness, a balance of sixty-six and two-thirds cents on the dollar, with interest at seven per cent. from 1861 to 1873, a period of twelve years. His investments, which were largely in up-town real estate, evinced great wisdom and foresight.

FREDERICK GERRIT LANSING, son of Frederick Lansing, of the town of Hassel, in the Province of Overysse, came to New Amsterdam with three sons to Rennselaerwyck about 1650;

Dr. Blatchford, of Lansingburg. He had seven pastorates, but the longest and with the largest success at Auburn. He was the original projector of Auburn Theological Seminary, and while pastor there acted as its financial agent and raised, personally, more than $100,000 for its endowment, and filled for some time also the chair of Sacred Rhetoric in the Seminary. He married Laura Alexander, daughter of Rev. Caleb Alexander. (She was born July 30, 1793, and died March 6, 1831).

REV. CALEB ALEXANDER was born in Northfield, Mass., July 22, 1755. He was elected, July 22, 1812, the first President of Hamilton College, but did not accept. He married Lucina Strong, daughter of Rev. Thomas Strong and Mehitable Stebbins, and grandson of Elder Ebenezer Strong, son of Elder John Strong.

The Spencer and Allied Families.

DESCENDANTS OF GERRARD SPENCER, OF ENGLAND.

Recent research has brought to light the fact that there were four brothers by the name of Spencer, viz., William, Thomas, Michael and Gerrard, living in New England at the same time, and that these were the sons of Gerrard Spencer, of Stotfold, Bedfordshire, England. The name Gerrard was a surname and no doubt derived through the marriage of one of his immediate ancestors with a Gerrard, showing that he was evidently a descendant of this ancient and distinguished family.

While there may be still one or two missing links in the English line, the origin and antiquity of the Spencer family is fully established. It begins with Juan Viscount Constantine, who married Ermine, Sir Alini Cometes Britanie.

Hudardus Dominus de Dutton, married Allcia de Dutton.

Sir Hugo Dominus de Dutton.

Hugh qui fuit le Despenser (Henry I, 1100-1135).

Thurston le Despenser.

Americus le Despenser de Stanley, married Eldai Blewett.

Thomas le Despenser.

Sir Galfridus le Despenser, 1251.

Collins' Peerage states that "The family of Spencers were made peers by James I, by the title of Lord Spencer of Wormleighton, and were afterwards made Earls of Sunderland; obtained the Dukedom of Marlborough by a marriage with Lady Anne, second daughter and co-heir of John Churchill, the celebrated Duke of that title, whose ancestry in England began with Roger de Courcil, eldest son of Wandril, who came into England in 1066, with William the Conqueror, and was rewarded for his services with divers lands in Somersetshire and Devonshire (as appears by the Domesday Book), part whereof was the lordship of Churchil which was anciently written Curchil, Churchel, Cherchel, etc., and was so denominated from being the habitation of his family."

Forty-five designs of the coat armour of the Spencer family are given in Burke's General Armory. The most ancient of these is that of Baron Churchill, described as Arms—Quarterly, first and fourth quarterly, argent and gules; in the second and third quarters a frit or, over all on a bend sable three escallops of the first.

Spencer.

Crest—Out of a ducal coronet or, a griffin's head between two wings expanded argent, gorged with a bar gemelle gules.

SUPPORTERS—Dexter, a griffin per fess ermine and erminois, gorged with a collar sable, the edges flory, counter flory and chained of the last, on the collar three escallops argent; sinister a wivern, erect on the tail ermine collared and chained as the griffin.

MOTTO—Dieu defend le droit (God defend the right).

Collins states further: This family (the Spencers) claim a descent from the ancient Baronial family of De Spenser, of whom Robert De Spenser came over with the Conqueror and was, as his name imports, steward to that monarch. At the time of the Domesday Book he had four lordships in Warwickshire, one in Gloucestershire, fifteen in Lincolnshire and seventeen in Leicestershire.

Robert Le De Spenser was father of William De Spenser, after whom was Thurston Le De Spenser, the King's steward, a powerful man, father of Americus le Despenser de Stanley, who married Eldai Blewett.

Thurston Spencer, Sheriff of Gloucestershire, 19th, 20th, 22d, Henry III, who died before 1249, who by Lucia ——— left Sir Jeffrey (or Galfridus) Spencer, who died about 1251, leaving two sons, Sir Hugh and Jeffrey. Sir Hugh, the eldest, was a great Baron and father of Hugh, Earl of Winchester, and grandfather of Hugh, Earl of Gloucester.

Geoffrey Le De Spenser, second son, is stated to have been Lord of Marchley in Worcestershire, and to have died 1242. He was father of John Le De Spenser, who, with others of the family, took part with the Barons in their wars against Henry III, and was taken prisoner at the battle of Northampton. By Ann, his second wife, he had two sons: Adam, who died young, and William.

William Le Despenser left a son and heir, John Le De Spenser, who was in the retinue of John of Gaunt, nominal King of Castile, in his voyage to Spain. He was afterward Keeper of the Wardrobe of Henry V, and was with him at the siege of Roan. He had by his wife Alice (daughter and heir of Giles Deverill), Nicholas Spenser, whose eldest son and heir was Henry Spenser, who married Isabel, daughter and co-heir of Henry Lincoln, and had four sons, of whom the eldest was John Spenser, who had a son John.

Sir John Spenser, eldest son of John, was denominated of Smithfield. On Sept. 3, 1506, he purchased the great lordship of Wormleighton, in Co. Warwick. He died April 14, 1522. He married Isabel, daughter and co-heir of Walter Gaunt, Esq., of Snellerfield in Warwickshire, who had issue,

Sir William Spenser, who received the honor of Knighthood A. D. 1529, and in 23 and 24 Henry VIII, was Sheriff of Northamptonshire. He died 1532. He married Susan ———, and had

Sir John Spenser, who was Sheriff of Northamptonshire in 5 Edward VI, and elected one of the Knights of the shire in parliament for that county in the 1st Queen Mary. He died Nov. 8, 1586, having married Katharine, daughter of Sir Thomas Kitson, and had William.

Sir William Spenser, third son of Sir John, received the honor of Knighthood from Queen Elizabeth, 1592. and died Dec. 18, 1609. By his wife Margaret, daughter of Francis Bowyer, he had two sons, Thomas the eldest, and five daughters.

Sir Thomas Spenser, eldest son of Sir John, was made Baron June 29, 1611, and was famous for his hospitality to the poor. He died 1632. He married Margaret, daughter of Richard Bramthwait, sergeant at-law, and had William.

Sir William Spenser, eldest son of Sir Thomas Spenser, married Constance, daughter of Sir Thomas Lucy, of Charlecote in Warwickshire, and had Thomas.

Sir Thomas Spenser, only son of Sir William Spenser, married Jane, daughter of SIR JOHN GERRARD, of Lamer in Hertfordshire, Bart. Sir Thomas's eldest daughter, Jane, was married to Robert Spenser, Lord Viscount of Tyrcot, of Scotland.

William Spenser, who married ELIZABETH GERRARD, was the son of Sir William Spenser, 2nd Lord Spenser, and Penelope Wreorthsley, daughter of Henry, Earl of Southampton.

Sir William was the son of Sir Robert, 1st Lord Spenser, who married Margaret Willoughby, daughter of Sir Francis.

Sir Robert Spenser was the son of Sir John Spenser, ancestor of Duke of Marlborough and Earl Spenser, son of Sir John Spenser and Katharine Kitson, before mentioned.

Jane Gerrard, wife of Sir Thomas Spenser, and Elizabeth Gerrard, wife of William Spenser, were descendants of Sir William Gerrard, Haberdasher, Lord Mayor of London, 1655, who married Isabel Netherell.

It was probably through one of these marriages referred to that the name Gerrard came to be adopted into the Spenser family as a Christian name. It was used in this form prior to the birth of Gerrard Spenser, of Stotfold, father of Gerrard Spenser, of Haddam, Conn.

Title wandered through several branches, and returned to his great grandson, Sir Thomas, Gerard, who married Dowse Ashton, daughter of Thomas.

Sir William Gerard, Haberdasher, great grandson of Thomas, was Lord Mayor of London, 1555, married Isabel Netherwell.

Sir John Gerrard, eldest son of Sir William, was sheriff of London 1592, Lord Mayor 1601 ; married Jane Partridge, daughter of Richard Partridge, Haberdasher.

Sir Thomas Spencer (who married Jane Gerrard) son of Sir William, son of Sir Thomas was probably the immediate ancestor of Richard Spencer, whose will forms an important connecting link between the Spencers of New England and those of Stotfold and London, England.

Gerrard Spencer, of Stotfold, Bedfordshire, England, was the father of Gerrard Spencer, of Haddam, Conn., and Lynn, Mass., of Michael, of Lynn, Mass., and of William and Thomas, of Hartford, Conn. While there may be one or two missing links between Gerrard Spencer and the Spencer and Gerrard families, both the name and the business—Haberdasher—(Richard, the brother of Gerrard being in that business) indicate the immediate connection of these families.

Garrard.

Burke's General Armory contains the following relative to the coat armour of the Garrard family :

"GARRARD. Newberry, county Berks, and Dorney, county Buckingham, founded by Sir William Garrard of Dorney, county Buckingham, Knight, Lord Mayor of London in 1555, as was his son Sir John Garrard, Knight, in 1601. Sir John's son and heir, another Sir John Garrard, of Lamer, was raised to a baronetcy by King James I. The third baronet's only daughter and heiress, Jane, married Montague Drake, of Shardeloes, and her great grand-son, Charles Drake, inheriting the estates under the will of Sir Benet Garrard, sixth and last baronet, assumed the additional name of Garrard. He was the father of Charles Benet-Drake Garrard, Esq.

CONNECTION OF THE SPENCER FAMILIES OF CONNECTICUT WITH THE SPENCERS OF ENGLAND.

The clue to the ancesters of the Spencer emigrants, William, Thomas, Michael and Gerrard, was first obtained from Miss Bainbridge, an industrious and enthusiastic genealogist of London, England, employed by Hon. George T. Spencer, of Corning, N. Y., in 1868. A copy of her letter dated Aug. 1, 1868, is in possession of R. P. Spencer of Deep River, Conn. Both of these gentlemen are entitled to great credit for their indefatigable efforts in securing so much valuable and interesting data of the Spencer family.

Prof. Ray T. Spencer while making researches in his own line, discovered among the church records of St. George's Parish, Stotfold, Bedfordshire, England, much interesting data, concerning the line of Gerrard Spencer, the father of William, Thomas, Michael and Gerrard the emigrants, from which it appears that the above named Gerrard was the son of Michael who also had a brother Gerrard, and they were the sons of John. Thus three generations preceding the emigrants are definitely established. The church records of St. George's Parish, above referred to, show that "June 9, 1558, John Spencer, Sen., was buried."

There is evidence to show that this John was the father of Michael and of the first Gerrard mentioned.

FROM NOTES OF GEO. T. SPENCER.

The ancestry of Gerard Spencer and his brothers William, Thomas and Michael Spencer, appears from the parish registers of Edworth and Stotfield in Bedfordshire, Eng., and other contemporaneous documents.

Jan. 25, 1555, Michael Spencer and Annis Linnr were married (the last name of Annis is so poorly written in the record that it cannot be definitely determined.)

April 20, 1557, John, son of Michael Spencer baptized.

May 27, 1558, was baptized Michael, son of Michael Spencer.

June 9, 1558, John Spencer senior was buried.

April 15, 1560, buried Michael, son of Michael Spencer.

21 April, 1560, John, son of Ann Spencer, widow, was buried.

16 June, 1560, Ann Spencer, widow, the good hospitality keeper, was buried.

23 Feb., 1561, Annis, the wife of Michael Spencer, was buried.

20 Aug., 1564, Joan, the daughter of Michael Spencer, was baptized.

30 Aug., 1566, Alice, daughter of Michael Spencer, was baptized, }
30 Aug., 1566, Michael Spencer, was baptized, } Twins.

24 July, 156., Ann, daughter of Michael Spencer baptized.

30 July, 1568, Jarratt Spencer and Ellen Whiston were married, whose will was proved at London, 20 May, 1577; he was brother of Michael the elder.

12 March, 1571, Thomas, son of Michael Spencer, was baptized.

20 May, 1576, Gerat Spencer, son of Michael Spencer, and Elizabeth his wife, baptized.

9 July, 1580, Richard, son of Michael and Elizabeth Spencer, baptized.

18 Nov., 1599, Elizabeth, wife of Michael Spencer, was buried.

It is quite probable that Michael Spencer of Edworth, and Gerrard Spencer of Biggleswade, were sons of John Spencer, Senior, and Ann Spencer whose burials are recorded in Edworth register, the former June 9, 1558, and the latter June 16, 1560:—Nothing more is known of them than what is disclosed by these records and the absence of further information may be accounted for by the fact that these registers do not extend back beyond 1552, and that many wills and valuable records and documents, it is said, were destroyed during the civil wars.

The copies of entries in the Parish registers of Stotfold and Edgworth Beds, England, were transcribed by Prof. Ray T. Spencer while on a visit to England in 1890–91 in search of the ancestor of the nephew of John Spencer, of Newbury, Mass., named in his will. He also procured the copies of the other documents from English sources, from which citations or copies are here given including the will of Richard Spencer. A part of these were published in the N. E. Hist. and Gen. Reg. vols. XLV. and XLVI. The following from the church records gives the birth of Gerrard, (father of the American emigrants), and his children:

“20 May, 1576, Gerat, son of Michael Spencer and Elizabeth his wife was baptized.”

His children were:

“1601, Oct. 11, WILLIAM SPENCER, son of Gerrard, bap.

[Moved to New England and settled in Hartford.]

“1602, Oct. 31, Elizabeth, daughter of Gerrard, bap.

“1603, Jan. 22, John, son of Gerrard, bap.

“1605, Aug. 11, Henry, son of Gerrard, bap.

“1607, March 29, THOMAS, son of Gerrard, bap.

[Moved to New England and settled in Cambridge, Mass., moved thence to Hartford, Conn.]

“1607, Oct. 20, Henry, son of Gerrard, bap.

“1608, Dec. 11, Richard, son of Gerrard, bap. [See his will.]

“1611, May 5, MICHAEL, son of Gerrard, bap.

[Moved to New England, settled in Lynn, Mass.]

“1614, April 25, GERARD, son of Gerard, bap.

[Moved to New England, settled in Haddam, Ct.]

“1614, May 6, Richard, son of Gerard, buried.”

Gerat (or Gerrard) Spencer, the youngest child of Michael, was by his second wife, as appears by the following record:

“May 2, 1576, Gerat Spencer, son of Michael and Elizabeth his wife, bap.”

GERRARD SPENCER (as the name was most commonly written), son of Michael and Elizabeth (——) Spencer, was born at Stotfold, in Bedfordshire, England, May 2, 1576. He was the father of the New England emigrants, William, Thomas, Michael and Gerrard.

The following items were copied from the English records by Prof. Ray T. Spencer for George T. Spencer, of Corning, N. Y.:

"Jan. 20, 1615. Gerrard Spencer, the elder, gent, and Alice his wife, granted to Thomas Spencer, the elder, gent, lands in Stotfold for 99 years, or during the lives of Gerrard Spencer the younger, Richard Spencer and Anthony Spencer, sons of Thomas; he paying 10s per year, and for this Thomas gave Gerrard 41 pounds.

"June 25, 1616. Gerrard Spencer, of Stotfold, gent, conveyed to Thomas Spencer, of London, citizen, &c., certain tenements and lands in Stotfold, as security for the payment of 60 pounds, 5 acres which, it is recited, were purchased by Michael Spencer, the father of said Thomas and Gerrard.

"July 24, 1617. Gerrard Spencer, of Stotfold, gent, releases and conveys absolutely the same premises to said Thomas Spencer, and in the deed is repeated the recital of the land purchased by Michael Spencer, father of said Thomas and Gerrard. On the same day, July 24, 1617, Gerrard Spencer, of Stotfold, gent, conveyed to Thomas Spencer, citizen, of London, for the consideration of 54 pounds, one-half of 39 acres of land in Stotfold, and one-half of two acres of meadow in Stotfold, which were granted by John Wynnes to said Gerrard Spencer and William Spencer, his son, Sept. 3, 1603.

"Thomas Spencer, of London, eldest son and heir of Thomas Spencer, of Stotfold, deceased, brought suit in the Court of Request against Thomas Spencer, of Stotfold, reciting that Gerrard Spencer, his uncle, seventeen years last past demised and leased to his father a house, tenement and appurtenances and seven acres of land in Stotfold. This is the same lease before mentioned from Gerrard and Alice, his wife, to Thomas for 99 years."

The N. E. Hist. and Gen. Reg. vols. XLV and XLVI, contain the following, which is a repetition of that obtained by Hon. Geo. T. Spencer, of Corning, N. Y.:

Francis Spencer, of St. Giles, without Cripplegate, London, citizen and brewer of London, 7 April, 1636. proved 24 Oct., 1636. My son, Thomas Spencer, shall immediately, after my decease, have, hold and enjoy to him, and his heirs forever, all my houses, lands, tenements and hereditaments, etc., in Hitchin, Herts., which for the most part I have already stated to him * * and I appoint my uncle Richard Spencer, citizen and haberdasher of London, and brother Daniel Spencer, citizen and grocer of London, to be overseer.

All of these brothers above mentioned were living in New England at the time of their uncle's death.

Michael Spencer appears as owner of land in Newtown in 1634,—was made freeman in 1638, and removed to Lynn, Mass., the same year. He married the widow of Thomas Robbins, of Salem. He died at Lynn in 1653, leaving two children, Susanna, born 1643, and Michael, six years old at the time of his father's death. His brother Gerard was appointed administrator of his estate.

He was a legatee of his uncle Richard Spencer, of London, as appears by a Bill of Exchange drawn by him on Daniel Spencer the executor of Richard Spencer's will dated Jan. 19, 1648, at thirty days sight for thirty pounds, part of the legacy in favor of Thomas Ruck, which was given in evidence in trial in Essex County Court at Salem in 1671, between John Ruck, administrator, and Joseph Armitage. The bill had been protested for non-payment. In what way this bill of exchange was involved in the suit does not appear.

Michael Spencer owned land in Hartford, Conn., as appears by the land records.

"Land in Hartford upon Connecticott River, belonging to Mikell Spencer, and to his heirs forever."

One p sell on which his dwelling house now standeth, with other outhouses yardes and gardens thereon being wich he bought of John Bidwell, contain by estima, three roods be it more or les, abutting on the highway leading to the mill on the south, and on the Widow Bettes her land toward the west and on the burying place on the east, and on Seathe Grant's land on the north." * * * He sold this land about Feb. 1646. On that date appears on the Court Records of Essex County, Mass., the following :

GERRARD SPENCER OF HADDAM, CONN., AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Gerrard or Jerrard Spencer, the founder of the Haddam and Saybrook, Connecticut, families of this name, born in Stotfold, England, bap. April 28, 1634, was the son of Gerrard Spencer and nephew of Sir Richard. He came to New England in 1632, and was admitted March 9, 1637, a freeman of the Massachusetts Bay Colony March 9, 1637. He was a resident of Cambridge 1634, and owned land on the south side of the river. He removed to Lynn, and at "A Gennerall Courte houlden at Boston the 13th of the First Month, 1638, Garritt Spencer is granted the fferry at Lynn for two years, taking 2d for a single pson to the furtherest place, and but 1d for a single pson to the nearest place." He was one of the Jurymen from Lynn at a County Court held the 25th of the 10th month, 1638. In 1653 he was appointed administrato on the estate of his brother Michael Spencer, who was also of Lynn. In June, 1656, he was chosen Ensign of the train band of Lynn, and in 1659 Grand Juror. He was in Connecticut the following year, as Simon Lobdell sued him and his daughter Hannah for damages because she refused to marry Lobdell.

He was probably in Hartford for a short time. In 1662 he and his son John were among the 28 purchasers of the town of Haddam, which was then and for many years afterward a part of Hartford County. Barbour, in his Historical Collections of Conn., states that the tract was taken up mostly by young men from the vicinity of Hartford, who settled the northern part of this land on the west side of the river. Two of his sons were assigned home lots in the division of 1671. The records show that he was the wealthiest man in the town. He was admitted freeman of the Colony of Conn. in 1672; was Ensign of the Militia, and represented the town at the General Court 1674-5, also 1678 and '79, 1680 and 81. He died in 1685, his will bearing date two years earlier.

The will of Gerrard Spencer, dated Sept. 17, 1683, was admitted to probate in 1685, and is as follows :

The Last Will and Testament of Jarrard Spencer, of Haddam.

"In the first place it is my will that all my lawful debts shall be payd concerning my estate that God hath left me. It is my will that my sons have after the rate of twenty and my daughters fifteen. I give unto my son William that land which I bought of Stephen Laxford's estate; how I came by it the Court Records will show. I give unto my son William the third part of forty-eight acres, be it more or less, lying by that which is commonly called Mills his brook; likewise I give unto my son William an acre of swamp mowing land adjoining to my house meadow lot, which particulars mentioned shall be all his part of my estate.

I give to my son Nathaniel, and to his heirs, my now dwelling house in the lot with an addition lying by the side of it, granted by the committee: likewise I give my son Nathaniel one-third part of that lot formerly mentioned lying by Wells his brook, likewise I give unto my son Nathaniel an acre of swamp lying at the end of my meadow lott, and joining to his brother William formerly given; likewise I give unto my son Nathaniel forty acres, which is a third part of six score acres, and this is to be his portion.

"I give unto my daughter Rebecca that house lot I bought of Thomas Smith; likewise I give unto my daughter Rebecca one-third part of that lott by Wells his brook, and this is to be her portion if she will accept it ; if not to take what falls to her in the distribution.

I give unto my son Thomas forty acres on Matchamoodus side, being part of that lot whereof his brother Nathaniel hath a share. I give unto my son Thomas his son, Jarrard Spencer, my rapier.

"I give unto my son Timothy Spencer the remaynder of that six-acre lot whereof his two brothers had their shares before, which six acres are those my sons shall choose. The other six acre-lot I dispose of as followeth, to Grace Spencer, the daughter of my son John Spencer, forty acres; to Alice Brooke, the daughter of my daughter Brooke, forty acres; to Grace Spencer, the daughter of my son Samuel Spencer, I give the other forty acres. I give unto Jarrard Cone, the son of my daughter Cone, my carbine. A pewter flagon and rim bayson I give unto the church at Haddam, if there be one within five years after the date hereof. It is my will that my son John, his children, and my son-in-law, Daniel Cone, his children, have an equal proportion of my estate with my other children. It is my will that however my estate falls out for portion to my children that my daughter Ruth Clark's portion shall be fifteen pounds, which was my covenant with her father at her marriage, which fifteen pounds she hath received some part of it as my books will testify. One thing I forgot : one feather bed which I give to my son Nathaniel.

Dated Sept. 17, 1683.

DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS SPENCER, OF WESTBROOK, SECOND CHILD OF GERRARD AND HANNAH SPENCER.

Thomas Spencer, fifth child of Gerrard and Hannah (——) Spencer, was born in Lynn, Mass., probably about 1650. He removed with his parents to Haddam, and may have settled in Saybrook before 1679, as his second child was born there in that year. He was voted an inhabitant Dec. 8, 1687, and resided in that part of the town known as Pochaug, now Westbrook, Conn. He was chosen Lister, July 29, 1692, and probably held other positions in the town. His inventory, March 1699-1700, was appraised at £302.14.11, a large sum for those days. He married Elizabeth Bates, daughter of James Bates (2), of Dorchester, Mass., (bap. Dec. 19, 1624) and Anne, daughter of Henry Withington, of Dorchester, son of James Bates (1), of Dorchester, born at Lydd, Kent, England, 1582; came to Dorchester 1635; married Alice ——. Thomas Spencer, by his wife Elizabeth (Bates) Spencer, had issue:

Jarrard, born Oct. 8, 1673, at Haddam; bap. at Middletown, July 5, 1674-5—his parents were members of the church at Lynn.

Thomas, born April 1, 1679, at Saybrook.

Caleb, born Jan. 19, 1695-6, at Saybrook.

The History of Middlesex County, page 566, referring to the "Iron Works" located in the Pond Meadow district, says: "The Spencers were the last proprietors in the early part of the present century, and it is altogether probable that Thomas Spencer, who settled near by, discovered the mine and founded the works prior to 1700. In 1702 the General Assembly excused Charles Williams, of Saybrook, from training, he being chief workman in the iron works there and living six or seven miles from town."

"The establishment combined a smelting furnace where the metal was reduced from the ore, and a blacksmith shop where every kind of hammered work in use at that time, from a horse nail to an anvil or anchor, was made. The ore was obtained from 'Mine Swamp,' but a little distance off, and the present appearance of the mining grounds, and the large quantity of slag that remains at the site of the works, leave no doubt of its importance to a large section at one time."

Caleb Spencer, youngest son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Bates) Spencer, was born in the parish of Westbrook, town of Saybrook, June 19, 1695-6. He was commissioned Ensign of the Train Band, and was chosen Surveyor of Highways Dec. 12, 1732. He was a man of considerable means and owned several slaves, which he divided among his children at his death. His slave "Toby and wife Jude, a worthy couple, were received into the church. * * * Toby had a number of children, all born in slavery." In his will Caleb says: "I give my negro man Toby to be equally divided between my three sons, Joseph, Caleb and John." By his wife Hannah (——) Caleb Spencer (1) had issue:

- I. Joseph, born April 18, 1720.
- II. Mary, born Sept. 19, 1721.
- III. Caleb (2), born Dec. 8, 1724.
- IV. Hannah, born Feb. 13, 1727.
- V. Lemuel, born March 14, 1728-9; died March 30, 1729.
- VI. John, born Feb. 11, 1730.
- VII. Sarah, born Feb. 21, 1731.
- VIII. Jemima, born Aug. 3, 1734; married Henry L'Hommedieu, of Westbrook parish, Saybrook.

Caleb Spencer married, second, Temperance Wright, by whom he had no issue.

Joseph Spencer, eldest child of Caleb (1) and (Hannah) Spencer, was born in Westbrook Parish, April 18, 1720. He is not referred to particularly in the records and probably spent his life in the cultivation of his farm. He married Lydia Grinnell (born Aug. 28, 1743) daughter of Paybodie and Ruth (Nettleton) Grinnell.

Pabodie Grinnell was the son of Daniel (3), son of Daniel (2), son of Daniel (1), son of Matthew.

Matthew Grennell was probably of Huguenot origin. He was among the earliest settlers of Newport, R. I., and was admitted freeman in 1638. Of his early history little is known, but the fact that among his descendents are found some of the most distinguished men of the country, indicates that he was a man of more than ordinary ability, and that he came of an excellent family. He married Rose ——. The children named in his will are Matthew, Thomas and Daniel (1).

Daniel Grinnell (1), son of Matthew and Rose (——) Grinnell, was born about 1636. He married Mary Wodell (born 1640), daughter of William and Mary Wodell. They lived at Portsmouth and Little Compton, R. I. They had issue: Daniel, Richard and Jonathan.

Daniel Grinnell (2), son of Daniel (1) and Mary (Wodell) Grinnell, was born at Little Compton, R. I. about 1665. He evidently did not mingle much in public affairs as his name is seldom found in the records. Extreme modesty, combined with great executive ability appears to have been characteristic of this family. He was probably a successful, thrifty farmer and devoted his whole attention to the cultivation of the ground. He removed to Saybrook, Conn., probably before 1700, and settled in Pochang near Westbrook. His social status is shown in the distinguished family that he became allied with. He married Lydia Pabodie, daughter of William Pabodie (2), son of William (1).

[For record of Daniel Grinnell, William Pabodie, John Alden, etc. See "Grinnell and Allied Families," page 32.]

Daniel Grennell (2), by his wife Lydia (Pabodie) Grinnell, had Priscilla, born 1689. Paybodie of Westbrook, born 1691. Mary married Robert Lay, of Saybrook.

This name of Paybodie, is said to have had its origin about A. D. 61, in the reign of Nero, the tyrant emperor, at which time the Ancient Britons, who were tribes of the more ancient Cambri, were in a state of vassalage to the emperor. Parsugatus, in the right of Queen Boadicia his wife, was reigning King in Icena, Briton, and hoping to secure his family and part of his immense estate in his will he gave one-half the estate to Nero, but to no purpose; for no sooner was the King dead than the officers of Nero seized everything in their power. Queen Boadicia being a woman of great abilities and power opposed these proceedings, for which Nero ordered her to be publicly whipped and her daughters submitted to the vilest insults. This so enraged the Britons that the Queen revolted, and with the assistance of her kinsman, a patriarch in one of the tribes, named Boadie, put himself at the head of the Britons, fought many desperate battles with various success, made a great massacre among the Romans and would have expelled them had not Suetoneus Paulinus at the critical moment with ten thousand fresh troops, joined the Romans. The battle continued with great vigor, and the result was doubtful, till the last victory inclined to the Romans. Upon which the Queen, who had behaved with surprising bravery, determined not to submit to the tyrant, dispatched herself with poison, leaving Boadie to his fate, who with his men sustained the horrid massacre in a desperate manner, selling their lives for a high price to the Romans, till their numbers were reduced to a few, when Boadie, after avenging himself by killing Galbuta, a Roman officer, and taking his helmet and armor, with a remnant of Britons, escaped and took asylum over the craggy mountains of Wales, whence they made frequent excursions upon their neighbors in the low country, the Romans having reduced a great part of the island to a state of servitude. Upon the helmet and armour was a Roman badge of honor and distinction described as Arms—Party per fesse nebule, gules, azure, two suns ppr with a garb.

Motto—Murus aenas conscientia sana (A sound conscience is a wall of brass.)

There was also a miniature likeness of the Empress Popia, wife of Nero. The Roman badge was sacredly preserved by the patriarchs of the name of Boadie as a trophy of honor.

Boadie, among the ancient Cambri, afterwards Britons, signified Man, "or a great Man," and Pea signified a large hill or mountain, which afterwards occasioned this patriarch leader to be called and distinguished among the neighboring enemy by the name of PEABODIE or MOUNTAIN MAN. This tribe multiplied considerably, and some of them, by tilling the land, a part of which was fertile, became very opulent, but most of them remained in a rude state. Some of them were herdsmen and kept cattle; others supported themselves by ranging the forest, &c., having many bloody conflicts with their neighbors, which often reduced their numbers and kept them in great distress, until, in the sixth century, when they were so far reduced that a compromise took place, after which they began to assimilate to their neighbors. In the reign of King Arthur, the Kingdom being invaded by the northern Saxons and others, a leader, or patriarch of the tribes by the name of Peabodie, a man of much influence and wealth, by his prowess and exertions in the battle on the river Douglass, aided much in expelling the invaders; and having in his possession the trophy that had been taken from the Romans, and carefully preserved by his ancestor—the reigning King Arthur, as a reward for his unshaken fidelity and heroic valor, ordered it to be registered, with additions, so as to stand as above stated to the name of Peabodie. While some of the name and family kept the name of Boadie—which with some was afterwards anglicized, when the name of Man, while others kept the name of Pea, which being also anglicized, some were called Hill, others Mont and Mountain. Hence these names, and there are arms to each name, but none so ancient.

Besides Francis Peabody, who has numerous descendants, there was also John Paybody, who was one of the original proprietors of Bridgewater, Mass., in 1645, and was representative at Plymouth in 1645, there was also a WILLIAM PABODIE, who signed himself PABODIE.

Paybodie Grinnell, second child and eldest son of Daniel (3) and Lydia (Pabodie) Grinnell, was born in 1691. He moved to Pochauge (Westbrook) in the old town of Saybrook, probably about 1720. His name appears on the list of those who responded to the call of the Assembly for troops in the expedition against Canada :

"An account of what was Delivered out of Saybrook Town Stock of ammunition to Capt. James Harris's Company, Sept. 12th and 13th, per me, John Tully."

"Paybody Grinnell, 1 lb. of Powder."

Paybody Grinnell married Ruth Nettleton (born about 1693), and had issue Lydia, who was married to Joseph Spencer.

DESCENDANTS OF DAVID SPENCER, SIXTH CHILD OF JOSEPH (2) AND LUCY POST SPENCER.

David Spencer, third child of Joseph (2) and Lucy (Post) Spencer, was born Dec. 16, 1785, in that part of the old town of Saybrook known as Westbrook. He was an industrious, thrifty farmer, and combined with farming the occupations of mason and blacksmith, two trades very essential in a sparsely settled community. He was a very helpful man among his neighbors, and much respected and honored for his many personal qualities. Upright, honest and public spirited, he made the most of his surroundings.

He married Rachel, daughter of Asa Bushnell and Hannah Chapman, daughter of Ichabod son of Nathaniel (2), son of Deacon Nathaniel, son of Robert Chapman the ancestor of the Saybrook and East Haddam branches of the Chapman family.

The name Chapman derives from the Saxon word Cheapman, meaning a merchant or cheapner.

Robert Chapman, the ancestor of the Saybrook branch of the family, was born in 1616 ; came from Hull, England, to Boston in 1635, and on Nov. 3, following, he sailed from there in company with Lion Gardner for Saybrook, Conn., as one of the company of twenty men who were sent by Sir Richard Saltonstall to take possession of a large tract of land near the mouth of the Connecticut river. He helped to subdue the Indians, taking an active part in company with his particular friend, Col. George Fenwick, in the various Indian warfares incident to the early settlement of Connecticut, and especially in the Pequot War. He was a large landholder in the towns of Saybrook and East Haddam. He also owned a large tract of land in Hebron, and left at his decease to each of his three sons fifteen hundred acres in that town which he received as one of the legatees of the Indian Chief Uncas and his sons. He settled himself on a tract of land in Oyster River, about two miles west of Saybrook fort, and this homestead is still in the possession of his descendants. He was a leading man in the town, and much engaged in public affairs. He was for many years town clerk and commissioner for Saybrook, and represented the town as Deputy to the General Court forty-five times, and was Governor's Assistant nine times. He died October 13, 1687. He married Anne Blith (or Bliss) April 29, 1642, and had issue, John, Robert, Anna, Hannah, Nathaniel (1), Mary, Sarah.

Deacon Nathaniel Chapman, fifth child of Robert, was born Feb. 16, 1653. He was for many years a deacon of the church in Saybrook, and represented the town at the General Court of Connecticut twenty-four sessions—1697 to 1723. He was a very large landholder, as appears from the records of the town of Saybrook and of the Oyster River Quarter. He owned fifteen hundred acres of land in Hebron, which he received by inheritance from his father, and presented to his son the Rev. Daniel Chapman. On the decease of his father he inherited the paternal homestead and left the same by will to his youngest son Caleb. He married, June 29, 1681, Mary Collins, of Guilford, daughter of John Collins. He married 2nd, Hannah Bates.

By his first wife he had Nathaniel; died soon : Nathaniel (2), born July 19, 1686 ; David, 1689, and John. By his second wife he had Mary, Hannah, Phineas, Caleb, Anne.

Daniel Chapman Spencer, eighth child and fifth son of David and Rachel (Bushnell) Spencer, was born in the Oyster River quarter of the old town of Saybrook, Dec. 3, 1823. Like most boys of his age, at that period, he had very little time for "schooling," as his services were required on the farm, and before he had mastered the simplest elementary branches he was, like the famous Cincinnatus, following the plow. During the winter months, however, he attended the academy and acquired a fair education, sufficient, as he thought, for the inherited occupation of farming. He had already attained his majority when a little incident changed the whole current of his life and the simple farmer boy became a prominent New York merchant. While working in the field one day he had a sun-stroke, which so affected his constitution that he was compelled to quit the farm and go as clerk in a country store. From a clerk in a country store he became a traveling salesman for a New Haven house. He developed a remarkable capacity for selling goods and soon acquired a reputation that extended beyond the precincts of his own State. A large wholesale dry goods firm of New York had learned of his successful career as a salesman and submitted a proposition to enter their employ. It was so startling to him that he thought they must have greatly overrated his abilities. So anxious was this firm, Messrs. Moulton, Plympton, Williams & Co., to secure his services, that they gave him a check to pay for the unexpired time due to his old employers. Mr. Spencer was at once placed in charge of their fancy goods department and was successful in its management up to the time of the failure of the firm. What seemed for the time to be a misfortune was indeed a blessing in disguise, for through the influence of Mr. Moulton he was introduced under the most favorable conditions to the house of Claflin, Mellen & Co., later H. B. Claflin & Co., who at that time contemplated opening a notion department in addition to their large dry goods business. So sanguine was Mr. Spencer of his ability to successfully conduct this department that he offered to take charge of it for a year without any compensation. Mr. Claflin insisted however on paying him a liberal salary, with the promise of an additional amount should the venture prove a success. The firm at that time occupied the old Trinity Building on lower Broadway, and so limited were the facilities that only the basement of the building could be used for the new line of goods. Mr. Spencer, however, utilized every inch of space, bought and sold the goods and managed the business in every way as if it were his own. The result exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the firm, who showed their appreciation of his efforts by presenting him with a check at the end of the year for $1,000 in addition to his salary. In renewing their engagement with Mr. Spencer they offered him a share of the profits which was virtually equivalent to a partnership. The business of the firm increased to that extent that they were obliged to seek for larger quarters with greatly increased facilities, and they purchased a site on the corner of Church and Worth streets, running through to West Broadway, covering nearly an acre of ground. On this they erected a building six stories high, fitted up with the best facilities that could be devised. As for Mr. Spencer, he was provided with the very best accommodations for the extensive business which he had established. His department covered a large portion of the third floor and a part of the fifth floor, requiring the assistance of over forty clerks. It was a great task for one man to control and attend personally to all the details of an immense business like this, but Mr. Spencer was equal to it and the firm of Claflin, Mellen & Co. soon became from the second largest to the largest wholesale dry goods establishment in the United States, doing a business of several millions annually in excess of its famous rival. That Mr. Spencer contributed materially to this result goes without saying. During his thirteen years' connection with this house his individuality was merged into that of the firm. That Mr. Spencer helped to lay the fortunes of this great firm is acknowledged by all who are familiar with his connection with it. In the accomplishment of this almost unprecedented success Mr. Spencer overtaxed his energies and his powers of endurance, and in 1867 he was compelled to dissolve his connection with the firm and recuperate his wasted energies. He was strongly urged by Mr. Claflin to remain in the business and take ample time for rest, but Mr. Spencer felt that he had reached the climax of physical and mental endurance and that if he would prolong his life he must lay aside all the cares and responsibilities of active business. Subsequent events have shown the wisdom of his course, for more than thirty years have been added to his long, useful life, in which he has contributed much to the welfare and happiness of others. While his name may not have been emblazoned on the pages of history as one of the great merchants of the metropolis, it was certainly written on the hearts of his associates and his memory will be kept green by those who knew and loved him. The thought of severing his connection with those who had been so long associated with him was one of the greatest trials of his life, but the event that followed immediately his decision was made known more than compensated for the sorrow he felt at parting and sweetened all the remaining years of his life. The account of this was described in the New York Tribune of Feb. 8, 1868, as follows :

“ Mr. D. C. Spencer, for many years past the genial and able manager of the Fancy Goods Department of the well known house of H. B. Claflin & Co., having been obliged, on account of ill health, to retire from business, his late employes, headed by his worthy and efficient successor, Mr. James H. Day, presented Mr. Spencer with a superb silver service, of the richest yet most chaste workmanship, contained in a truly elegant black walnut casket. Each piece of the service bears the following inscription :

PRESENTED TO
D. C. SPENCER
BY HIS LATE EMPLOYEES
ON HIS RETIRING FROM BUSINESS
JAN. 1, 1868.

“ Accompanying the service was a very handsome card, 36 by 40 inches, incased in a heavy gilt frame, on which is a photograph of the house of Claflin & Co., and one of each of the donors. In the center of this card, in an oval space surrounded by the photographs, are these words :

“ ‘ We, whose familiar faces surround this Card of Presentation, would respectfully state that in your retirement from business and our midst we feel that we lose a genial face, a good counseling friend, an exemplary Christian and a true business man.

“ ‘ Expressive of our feelings of high respect for you and our deep regret that your impaired health compels our separation, we ask that you receive this Card and Service in the spirit in which it is presented, as a memento of past pleasant associations.

“ ‘ We would further add that it shall be our earnest prayer that your health may be restored and that you may long be spared to your family and for society’s good.’

“ To these costly testimonials of the regard of his late employees and their regret at losing him from their midst, Mr. Spencer replied in the following characteristic and appropriate letter :

“ ‘ GENTLEMEN :—No language, however eloquent, can picture the surprise and pleasure awakened in my breast by the elegant present of which you have made me the recipient, and which I shall prize most highly for its intrinsic worth, and far more as being a testimonial of your regard and esteem for me and of the pleasure and benefit you have derived from our business relations.

“ ‘ When the heart is full, many words seem but to weaken the expression of our gratitude. I will only say, therefore, that for your handsome gift, and the accompanying kind wishes in my behalf, I thank you from the bottom of a grateful heart.

“ ‘ It has not been without sincere regret on my part that I have ended our business connections by withdrawing myself from your midst, but although the state of my health has rendered that withdrawal necessary, I shall ever treasure up in my mind the many pleasant memories arising from our past relations, and not one of your faces shall ever cease to be remembered with feelings of the deepest interest. I shall always pray earnestly and hopefully that none of those faces may be overcast by clouds of sorrow or disappointment, but that each one of your lives may be crowned with success and happiness.’

“ This happy affair will long be remembered both by the recipient and the donors, and the recollection of it will doubtless be a source of great pleasure to them in after years.”

After closing up his business affairs Mr. Spencer returned to the home of his childhood, where he soon found sufficient employment to occupy his time. He improved and enlarged the place, purchasing a number of acres adjoining the homestead. With his practical business knowledge and with ample means at his command he soon made the old farm present a different aspect. With delightful surroundings and his mind at ease, Mr. Spencer soon recovered his health. To restore the prestige of the old Saybrook Colony by making it an attractive summer resort, occupied his attention for the next few years. He purchased 100 acres of land at Guard House Point, and later, in connection with others, bought 250 acres of the Lynde farm. This was mostly disposed of to the New Saybrook Company and laid out in villa plots on which were erected beautiful summer residences. Mr. Spencer became personally interested and was one of the promoters in all these public improvements, which included the famous hotel known as Fenwick Hall.

He was one of the promoters of the Valley Railroad and was instrumental in securing the present terminal. He aided in the enterprise by subscribing liberally to the stock, and was a director and auditor for many years.

He has been twice elected to represent his town in the Legislature: first in 1885, when he was Chairman of the Library Committee, and again in 1886, when he served on the Railroad Committee. He was also a director in the Deep River National Bank for many years, and served at various times as Town Auditor of Accounts, and also as United States Grand Juror. He is a Life Member of the Connecticut Humane Society and of the Acton Library.

While residing in New York he was a member of St. Timothy Episcopal Church, and held the office of Treasurer, Vestryman and Warden. On his return to his native town he joined the Grace Episcopal Church and was largely instrumental in the erection of the beautiful stone edifice—its present place of worship, and was one of the most liberal contributors to the building fund. He has been active in church work, and during the past thirty years has held the various offices of Clerk, Treasurer, Vestryman, etc., and later that of Senior Warden.

He married, at Westbrook, Conn., Oct. 12, 1851, Emily Maria, daughter of William Stokes, son of Richard, son of Jonathan, Jr., son of Jonathan Stokes, Sen., who came from England with his wife and two children (one of whom was Jonathan, Jr.) and settled in Branford, Conn.

DESCENDANTS OF GEORGE SPENCER, FOURTH CHILD OF JOSEPH (2) (SEE PAGE 61) AND LUCY (POST) SPENCER, SON OF JOSEPH (1), SON OF CALEB, SON OF THOMAS, SON OF GERRARD SPENCER.

George Spencer, seventh child of Joseph (2) and fourth child by his second wife, Lucy (Post) Spencer; was born Oct. 6, 1787. At an early age he was apprenticed to Nathan Pratt, of Essex, Conn., then engaged in the jewelry business. He served as a private in the War of 1812. He removed to Deep River in 1818, having previously, with others, formed a copartnership with Ezra Williams & Co., manufacturers of ivory combs, etc. This continued until 1830, when it was succeeded by George Read & Co., and in 1864 became a joint stock company.

Mr. Spencer was deacon of the Congregational Church of Deep River from its organization in 1834 till his death, July 24, 1878. He was President of the Deep River Bank from Nov. 1859, to January, 1865, when he resigned. He was succeeded by Henry Wooster, who died August, 1866. It was said by a cotemporary he was a man of robust mind, incorruptible integrity, and strong religious convictions, and though nearly 91 years old when he died, his mental faculties were preserved in a good degree of vigor until the last. [Hist. Middlesex Co., p. 557.] On the Sunday following his funeral his pastor, Rev. W. H. Knouse, delivered a memorial sermon as a tribute to his christian character and exemplary life.

He married 1st, Julia Pratt, born Oct. 24, 1785, daughter of Comfort and Susannah (Tiley) Pratt, Sept. 12, 1813. She died March 29, 1845.

The lineage of Julia Pratt has been traced to Thomas and Joan Pratt, of Baldock, Hertfordshire, England (1539), through his son Andrew Pratt, father of Rev. William Pratt, born in 1567, for thirty years prior to his death in 1629 Rector of the parish of Stevenage, near Baldock, Hertfordshire. His son William, known as Lieut. William Pratt, came to Newtown (Cambridge) in 1632 or 1633; removed to Hartford in 1636, and from there to that part of the original town of Saybrook known as Potapaug in 1645, being among the first settlers there. His wife was Elizabeth Clark, and from them was descended in direct line: 1. Nathaniel Pratt, born about 1660 or 1661; married Sarah Beamont, May 2, 1688. 2. Deacon Hezekiah Pratt, born July 9, 1701; married a lady whose christian name was Ann; died Oct. 4, 1786. 3. Comfort, born in 1746; married Susannah Tiley, June 4, 1774, and died Feb. 19, 1778. [Pratt Family, by Rev. F. W. Chapman.]

He married 2nd, Ursula Read, born April 23, 1789, daughter of Cornelius and Temperance (Williams) Read, Oct. 20, 1845, who died March 27, 1853.

Third, Ann E. Bates, daughter of Barnabas and Rebecca (Clark) Bates, Jan. 4, 1854; died Sept. 17, 1882.

He was elected to the State Legislature of New York of 1857, and served as a member of the Judiciary Committee. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1867. He was elected Judge of Steuben County for the term commencing in 1872, continuing in office until 1878. He continued in the active practice of his profession until 1896, retiring at the age of 80. He has been engaged with his brother, R. P. Spencer, of Deep River, Conn., for many years in the collection of matters relating to the history and genealogy of the Spencer family.

He married, Nov. 3, 1842, Harriet Stacy, daughter of Ira and Roxanna (Glover) Stacy, of Belchertown, Mass.

III. Hon. Richard Pratt Spencer, third child of Deacon George and Julia (Pratt) Spencer, was born in Deep River, Conn., Feb. 12, 1820. His knowledge of the rudimentary branches of education was obtained at the village school, and he was afterwards sent to Madison, Berlin, Conn., and Belchertown, Mass. high schools. Being thus fully equipped for a business career, he entered the employ of his father's firm and soon after attaining his majority joined the firm as a partner. Later he organized the firm of Pratt, Spencer & Co., with Ulysses and Alexis Pratt as partners. This firm engaged largely in the manufacture of ivory turnings and ivory piano keys. He sold his interest in the business in 1850 and removed to Corning, N. Y., and there established a banking business which he carried on successfully for several years. He returned to his native town in 1866 and was shortly after elected President of the Deep River National Bank, which position he still occupies.

Naturally of a retiring disposition, Mr. Spencer has been but little in public life. He gave his hearty support to the cause of the Union during the Civil War and has been identified with the Republican party since its organization, having been formerly connected with the old Whig party. He was elected to the State Senate in 1882-3, and served as Chairman of the Committee on Fisheries, and during the second session was Chairman of the Committee on Banks. He was two years treasurer of the Deep River Savings Bank, an institution in which he has always taken a deep interest. He has added much to the wealth and prosperity of the town, and his picturesque home near the banks of the Connecticut is said to be one of the finest residences in the State.

Mr. Spencer married 1st, in 1850, Clarissa, daughter of George H. Chapman and Lucia (Tulley) Chapman, of Old Saybrook. She died Dec. 16, 1871, without issue. He married 2nd, Feb. 28, 1887, Julianna, daughter of Richard Lynde Selden, of Hadlyme, son of Richard Ely Selden (2), son of Richard Ely Selden (1), son of Col. Samuel, son of Samuel, son of Joseph, son of Thomas, the ancestor.

Thomas Selden, the ancestor, was one of the founders of Hartford, Conn., in 1639; was admitted freeman 1640. By his wife, Esther ———, he had, Thomas, bap. Aug. 31, 1645; John, died May, 1650; Mary, born March 26, 1648; Esther, born March 3, 1650, died next year; Joseph, born Nov. 2, 1651; Hannah; Sarah. He died before the end of 1655. His will names widow Esther, who married Andrew Warner.

Joseph Selden, son of Thomas and Esther (——) Selden, was born Nov. 2, 1651, at Hartford, Conn. He removed first to Hadley, Mass., thence to Deerfield, back to Hadley again, and finally to Lyme, Conn., and there purchased a large estate partly in Haddam. He died before February, 1725. He married Rebecca Church, of Hatfield, daughter of Dea. Edward Church, son of Richard Church, of Hartford.

Richard Church, of Hartford, 1637, "an original proprietor," says Savage, "whose first residence is unknown, removed about 1660 to Hadley."

Coltun says: "As nearly as can now be traced he was an uncle of Col. Benjamin Church, who commanded the party which killed King Philip in 1676, and who was sent on an expedition against the eastern Indians of New England in 1704, and did them and the French much damage. He removed to Hartford with Hooker's congregation in 1636."

His widow, Ann, died 10 March, 1684, aged 83, and in his will only four children are named. These were, Edward, John, Mary and Samuel, all probably born in England.

Dea. Edward Church, son of Richard Church, of Hartford, was born in England, 1628, and had perhaps been some time at New Haven. He removed to Hartford and was then deacon. His children were: Mary, married Philip Russell as his third wife; Rebecca, married 1697, Joseph Selden; Hepzebah, married 16 Sept. 1696, Samuel Spencer.

Joseph Selden, by his wife Rebecca (Church) Selden, had Rebecca, born 1678; Esther, 1680,

J. P. Spencer

Esq. 249 N. 4th St. New York.

died soon ; Joseph, 1682 ; Thomas, 1684 ; Hannah, Mary, March 5, 1689 ; Esther again ; Samuel, born May 17, 1695.

Samuel Selden, youngest child of Joseph and Rebecca (Church) Selden, was born May 17, 1695. He married Deborah Dudley. They had two sons, Samuel "the Colonel," and Ezra "the Squire."

Colonel Samuel Selden, son of Samuel and Deborah (Dudley) Selden, was born at Hadlyme, Jan. 11, 1723. He served in a military capacity before the Revolution, as appears by the following, Conn. Colonial Records, 1774 :

"This Assembly do appoint Samuel Selden, Esq., to be Major of the third regiment of militia in this Colony."

Immediately after the breaking out of the War of the Revolution he offered his services to the State in response to a call from the Assembly, and was commissioned Colonel of the Fourth Battalion, Wadsworth's Brigade. Johnston, in his description of the Battle of Long Island, says :

"Another of those citizen soldiers who came from the substantial element in the population was Colonel Selden. A descendant of the Seldens who were among the first settlers in the Connecticut Valley, fifty years of age, possessing a large estate, incapacitated for severe military duty, the father of twelve children, he nevertheless answered the Governor's call for troops and joined the army at New York, from which he was destined not to return."

He took an active part in the Battle of Long Island, Aug. 27, 1776, and when the American army retreated from New York, Sept. 15, he, with many others, was captured. Johnston, in describing the "Kip's Bay" affair, says: "During these scenes Wadsworth's and Scott's brigades, which were below Douglass on the river lines, saw that their only safety lay, also, in immediate retreat, and falling back they joined the other brigades above, though not without suffering some loss." Col. Selden was confined in the prison in the east side of the City Hall Park, now used as the Register's Office, where he died of fever "on Friday P. M., October 11, about 3 o'clock." In the latter part of his sickness he was attended by Dr. Thatcher, a British surgeon, who paid him every attention. He was buried in the Brick Church-yard (Presbyterian). He married Elizabeth Ely, daughter of Richard Ely and Elizabeth Peck, of Lyme. They had issue Richard Ely Selden and others.

Richard Ely Selden, son of Col. Samuel and Elizabeth (Ely) Selden, was born at Hadlyme, in 1759 ; died 23 January, 1848, aged 89. He married Desire Colt, daughter of Joseph Colt and Desire Pratt, of Saybrook, Conn. They had seven children, of whom Richard Ely Selden, Jr., was the sixth.

Richard Ely Selden (2), son of Richard Ely Selden (1) and Desire Colt, was born in Hadlyme, June 13, 1797. Graduated from Yale College in 1818 ; died March 3, 1868. He married 21 Feb. 1821, Eliza Lynde (born 5 Feb. 1796), daughter of William Lynde, Esq., and Sally Kirtland, his wife ; she died 23 Jan. 1866.

DESCENDANTS OF CALEB SPENCER (2), SON OF CALEB (1), SON OF THOMAS, SON OF GERRARD.

Caleb Spencer (2,) brother of Joseph and third child of Caleb (1) and Hannah (——) Spencer, was born in Westbrook parish (then a part of the town of Saybrook, now the town of Westbrook) Dec. 8, 1724. It is quite probable that he served in the Revolutionary War, as "Connecticut Men in the Revolution" contains the name of Caleb Spencer, who served as corporal in Capt. Uriah Seymour's company, Major Sheldon's Regiment of Light Horse. Caleb (2) died Sept. 30, 1783. His wife was Mrs. Hannah Stokes (née Goodrich), widow of Richard Stokes (see Stokes Family, following that of D. C. Spencer, page 71). She died Dec. 29, 1791, and was buried in Westbrook, where the inscription on her tombstone is still clear and distinct. (Quite an imposing monument to her memory was erected in Branford by the Goodrich family who were probably not aware of the fact that she was buried in Westbrook). The children of this marriage were Caleb (2) the eldest, who died unmarried, Timothy, born 1772, and John, who went West with his family about 1820.

CAPT. TIMOTHY SPENCER, second child of Caleb (2) and Hannah (Stokes, née Goodrich) Spencer was born in Westbrook, Conn., 1772. Like many young men of that period residing along the coast towns of Connecticut he was a ship carpenter and ship builder, and almost every man in that section of country was directly or indirectly interested in shipping and ship building. This environment developed a class of seafaring men—bold, intelligent, hardy—who proved an honor to our merchant marine service, second to no other nation. Capt. Timothy Spencer encouraged that spirit of independence and manhood in his children and laid the foundation of their successful career as navigators and shipping merchants. He married Polly Bushnell (born 1783), daughter of Jordan and Sarah (Pratt) Bushnell. Sarah Pratt, the wife of Jordan Bushnell, was the daughter of Timothy Pratt and Sarah Parker, son of Isaac Pratt, son of Ensign John Pratt, eldest son of Lieut. William Pratt, one of the chief founders of Saybrook and one of the most important men in the colony of Connecticut. (See Pratt Family, page) Jordan Bushnell, above referred to, served in the War of the Revolution as private in Capt. Martin Kirtland's Company, Col. Erastus Wolcott's Regiment (soon after Brigadier General and later Governor of Conn.) This company was stationed at New London, Conn., Feb. 28, '77, and was made up principally of Saybrook men.

Capt. Timothy Spencer by his wife Polly (Bushnell) Spencer had issue :

- I. Margette, born Feb. 23, 1806.
- II. Emeline, born Aug. 28, 1807.
- III. Frederick W., born Jan. 7, 1810.
- IV. JOSEPH WHITTLESEY, born June 12, 1812.
- V. ALFRED GOODRICH, born July 9, 1814.
- VI. Eloise, born Oct. 8, 1816.
- VII. Harriet E., born July 10, 1820.

Capt. Joseph Whittlesey Spencer, fourth child of Timothy and Polly (Bushnell) Spencer, was born at Westbrook, Conn., June 10th, 1812. With a natural taste for a seafaring life, he engaged as a boy in the coasting trade on Long Island Sound until, at the age of sixteen, he shipped as an ordinary seaman on the "Athenian" and made his first deep water voyage to Carthage. Later, while on a voyage to Cuba, the captain and most of the crew being taken sick with yellow fever, the mate took charge of the ship and young Spencer was made second mate. He soon rose to the position of first mate and in 1834 was placed in command of the brig "Medina."

Two years later he made his first whaling voyage as captain of the barque "General Brown," and managed one of the boats which captured the first whale. His share in the profits of this voyage enabled him to purchase an interest in the "Crusoe." Later he built and commanded the "Rose Standish," and in 1848 he built the "William Rathbone." With this vessel, which was nearly three times the tonnage of the former one, he entered into the Liverpool trade.

Among the achievements of Captain Spencer's life, one which added greatly to his reputation among seafaring men, was the building of the "David Crockett," one of the most famous, as well as one of the largest and fastest of that class of clipper ships which made the American merchant marine famous. This remarkably successful vessel he commanded for four years and then gave up active service on the sea.

His ship continued in the California trade, making an enviable record for short passages and financial success until the American wooden ship was displaced by the iron ships built and owned abroad. After this the "David Crockett" suffered the fate of her sister ships by being converted into a coal barge. For many years she continued in this service, until in the latter part of the year 1898 she made her last port and ran aground on Romer shoal at the entrance of New York harbor. All through the winter she lay there in the sight of all the incoming and outgoing shipping, a sad monument to the memory of the American clipper ship of days gone by.

Captain Spencer, having left the sea, in 1858, became manager, joint owner and adviser of all the shipping interests controlled by Lawrence Giles & Co., of New York City. He continued in this position for several years until (owing to our unfortunate navigation laws) the shipping interests of this country gradually fell into the hands of foreigners and ceased to be profitable to American ship owners. He then retired to his beautiful home in Westbrook, Conn., where he resided most of his time during the remainder of his life. He died May 23, 1900, at the ripe old age of 88.

Capt. Spencer was one of the best known and most popular sea captains that ever sailed out of the port of New York. Fearless in the discharge of his duty, the very soul of honor and integrity, he led an upright, blameless life, and was a worthy representative of that noble band of American sea captains of half a century ago, who reflected honor and glory on the flag under which they sailed.

Capt. Spencer married (Sept. 2, 1838,) Amelia A., daughter of John Stokes, son of Richard.

Richard Stokes, the son of Jonathan, has already been referred to on page 71. The Eastern State Journal furnishes the following additional data relative to his service in the Revolution:

"During the Revolution, while General Washington made his headquarters at White Plains, he selected some five or six trusty men to execute a dangerous commission. Among the number was a young volunteer, Richard Stokes, of Westbrook, Connecticut. His earnestness, courage and enthusiasm had won the respect of Washington, who asked him if he felt ready to engage in a perilous but necessary undertaking. Stokes promptly replied that he was ready to serve his country at all hazards. The General then gave them their instructions and the party started forthwith, proceeding cautiously through the woods and keeping well out of sight until they reached New York City. Here, favored by the darkness of a cloudy night, they appropriated one of the enemy's boats, and, with muffled oars, glided down the river to Staten Island, passing directly under the enemy's guns without being discovered. Here they received a large sum of money—a treasure which the close blockade of the British squadron had hitherto prevented from reaching its destination—a treasure sent over from France by those noble friends of liberty who were ever ready to aid us, even with their lives, in our struggles for freedom. The brave little party then returned as they had gone, and arriving safely, delivered the treasure to their General. Soon after this occurred the battle of White Plains, in which this brave youth again served his country in a manner none the less hazardous and honorable. Mr. Stokes enlisted at the beginning of the war and served faithfully to its close. Often, after the fatigue of a long march, had he and his comrades lain down in the woods to rest, and awoke to find a heavy sheet of snow for their coverlet. At the close of the war Mr. Stokes returned to his Connecticut home, where many of his descendants now reside."

Capt. Joseph Whittlesey Spencer by his wife, Amelia (Stokes) Spencer, had issue :

- I. JOSEPH TIMOTHY, born Aug. 23, 1842. (See record).
- II. JAMES HICKS, born Sept. 16, 1845. (See record).
- III. Arabella Maria, born Jan. 24, 1848, died Oct., 1875.
- IV. Winfield Scott, born March 7, 1850. (See record).
- V. John Stokes, born Aug. 20, 1852, married Annie Abbott.

CAPT. JOSEPH TIMOTHY SPENCER, eldest child of Capt. Joseph Whittlesey Spencer and his wife, Amelia Stokes, was born Aug. 23, 1842. At an early age he followed in the footsteps of his father and adopted a seafaring life. His first voyage was made in the "David Crockett." At the breaking out of the Civil War he entered the transport service and was appointed captain of the steamer "Haze." After the close of the war he returned to the merchant service and became connected with the Galveston (Texas) trade, in which he continued for several years until his death, Oct. 20, 1870, being lost at sea by the foundering of his steamer in a hurricane off the Florida coast.

He married, Jan. 12, 1870, Georgia Rossiter, of Clinton, Conn., but had no issue.

JAMES HICKS SPENCER, second child of Captain Joseph W. and Amelia Stokes Spencer, was born in Westbrook, Conn., Sept. 16, 1845. He attended a select school in New Haven, Conn., where he received a thorough education in those branches best adapted to fit him for a mercantile career. He came to New York City in 1863 and entered the house of Lawrence Giles & Co., of which his father was a member. He remained with this firm ten years, and in 1874 started in business for himself as an importer principally of shell nuts from the Mediterranean. With a constantly increasing trade he is now one of the largest importers in this special line.

Outside of business his interest has centered chiefly in military affairs. April 7, 1865, he joined the 37th Regiment as private in Company F. This was one of the city regiments organized for special service or emergency during the war. His company was consolidated with the 9th Regiment and Mr. Spencer was made sergeant of Company K. Afterwards he became 1st Lieutenant in the 4th Reg. N. G., S. N. Y., and in 1872 he was commissioned Captain of Company A, 1st Regiment, N. G., S. N. Y., continuing in this capacity until Dec. 27, 1874, when he resigned. During this period he took part in all the principal affairs of his regiment. He is a life member of the several Masonic bodies, including that of Mecca Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

He married, July 25, 1876, Alice F. Brown, daughter of John Brown, of Albany, N. Y., and Mary Ferris, his wife, of Boston. Their children are Alice Estelle, born June 24, 1877; Joseph Whittlesey, born Feb. 24, 1880; Alice Gerrard, born March 20, 1885.

WINFIELD SCOTT SPENCER, fourth child of Captain Joseph Whittlesey Spencer and his wife, Amelia (Stokes) Spencer, was born at Westbrook, March 7, 1850. He was educated at the public school and after completing his studies entered the dry goods trade. He carried on business for himself at New Rochelle, N. Y., for about fifteen years, retiring in Oct., 1900. He married Sarah Isabelle Parrish, of Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 20, 1882.
